COLD-BLOODED MURDERS IN SHENG AN PIRACY

Astounding Story of Butchery Related by Member of Crew

A sign of Japan's growing interest ing.

The Tiger Car

MILLIONAIRE'S DESIGN

A most unusual design in cars has just been imported into the Colony, this being a Sunbeam five-seater, belonging to Mr. Aw Boon-haw, the well-known multimillionaire philanthropist.

The front of the car body is moulded into a life-like tiger's head with jaws agape closing over the radiator, and the rest of the body is painted with alternate black and yellow streaks to enhance the illusion.

It is easily identified with the well-known Tiger trade-mark on the patent medicinal balm from which the owner has amassed his millions.

It is understood that the car was built to an original specification from the owner, and had toured the Straits Settlements before being brought here.

As a novel form of trade advertisement it should impress, and many were the hails which greeted its progress through the streets this morning on its way to the Central Police Station for official inspection.

DEATH OF SIR J. SEABROOKE

FORTY THREE YEARS IN INDIA OFFICE

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 1.

The death has occurred, at the age of 81, of Sir James Herbert Seabrooke.

Born in 1852, Sir James was educated at King's College, London and Queen's Oxford, and entered the India Office in 1876. He was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Revenue and Statistics Department in 1900 and was Assistant Secretary of the Military Department from 1907 to 1915. He was Deputy Clerk of the Council from 1915 to 1919 and retired at the end of this period.

YAUMATI CRIME

MAN'S BODY FOUND AT BACK OF SHOP

Shortly before 7 o'clock this morning, the corpse of a Chinese was discovered at the back of the Kwong Tak Iron-ware shop at the end of Pitt Street, Yaumati.
The head bore what appears to be a bullet wound.

The identity of the dead man has not yet been ascertained.

THREE SHOT DEAD IN SLEEP

TWO MORE ARRESTS IN DAIREN MANHUNT

CREW DAYS WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER

DAIREN, JULY 3.

ONE OF THE GREATEST MAN-HUNTS EVER WITNESSED IN DAIREN HAS ENDED WITH THE CAPTURE OF THE SHENG AN FUGITIVES.

The arrest at eight o'clock last night of Arthur Gautschi, a Swiss, and Walter Muller, a German, completes the round-up of the men alleged to be responsible for the atrocious crime aboard the s.s.
Sheng An.

Muller is twenty-five years of age and Gautschi is thirty-two.
The others in custody are Germans named Taudin, Schuler and Bes-ton.

They boarded the Sheng An at Tangku and compelled the master, Captain Vikhman, a Russian, to give them passage to Shanghai.

When within 200 miles of Shanghai, apparently anticipating that Captain Vikhman would lay charges against them, they seized control of the Sheng An, murdering the captain, the chief officer,
M. Azaroff, and his wife, and seven members of the crew.

SUSPICION AROUSED.

When making for Dairen they met with a mishap at Hoshigaura, the vessel grounding at 3 a.m.
Something about the actions of Captain Taudin, when he went ashore, aroused the suspicions of the police and he was arrested.
Investigations brought the terrible story to light and the arrests of the other members of the gang followed speedily.—Reuter.

CHINESE JOIN HUNT.

The Chinese of the steamer willingly joined in the hunt after recovering from the nerve-shattering ordeal through which they passed.

One of the seamen, in a talk with Reuter's representative, said that the five foreigners went on board the Sheng An at Tangku on June 26 and insisted that the captain give them accommodation aboard the steamer.

On the night of June 28, at about ten o'clock, after having studied thoroughly the layout of the ship,
the foreign pirates suddenly stationed themselves at strategic positions, chiefly at the heads of the various stairways.

KILLED IN SLEEP.

Without any warning whatsoever one of them shot dead the wireless operator, a Chinese, who was lying asleep in his room, and destroyed the apparatus.

The chief officer, M. Azaroff, hearing the shots rushed out on deck and was met with a hail of bullets, being killed on the spot.

From outside Captain Vikhman's room, where he and Mrs. Azaroff were talking, a shower of bullets was sent through the window, killing both instantly.

The captain's boy had been called and when he appeared, he was also shot dead. A deckboy was slain without mercy.

CALLOUS MURDERS.

Russians and three Chinese been murdered and quickly afterward the bodies of the crew were while two who were lying asleep in their beds had their heads almost blown off because of the closeness of the range at which they were shot.

As soon as the murders had been committed, the bodies were bundled overboard.

CALM ADMISSION.

The buccaners now in custody have admitted that the story told by the crew is essentially true.
They said, in fact, that it was especially difficult to throw Captain Vikhman's body overboard because he was a giant.

The majority of the remaining seamen, thoroughly scared, sought refuge in a tiny room and locked the door and although they were without food and water, they stayed there until the ship grounded.

CREW WHIPPED.

Those members of the crew who did not succeed in taking refuge, were whipped into cruel servitude and forced to turn back the ship towards Dairen, where the pirates intended to provision the ship and take her to Valparaiso.

When the ship grounded, the buccaners went ashore in two junks.

Westerman and Schroeder (not Schuller as previously reported) were arrested while sleeping with pistols under their pillows.

Gautschi and Muller were caught in the hills behind Dairen twenty-eight hours after they had landed.—

6-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED

KNOCKED DOWN BY MOTOR CAR

Fatal injuries from which he died while being conveyed to Hospital, were suffered by Hui Ping-tin, aged 6, as a result of being struck down by a car at Shaikwan
last night.

At the time the car was overtaking another vehicle in Main Street, and it failed to clear the lad who had appeared unexpectedly from Taining Street. The position appears to have been further complicated by the presence also of a tram.

The victim was being accompanied by his little brother and their mother.

HITLER AND VATICAN

NOW CONCORDAT NEGOTIATED

HOW FAR NAZIS CAN GO

Vatican City, July 2.

Captain von Papen, the Vice-Chancellor of the Reich, has completed his mission in Rome,
according to an authoritative report.

It is understood that an agreement has been reached in principle for a concordat between the Vatican and Germany, following discussions between von Papen and Cardinal Pacelli, the Papal Secretary of State.

The new concordat, it is understood, will link up the existing concordats between Prussia and Bavaria and the Vatican.

It is presumed that Herr Adolf Hitler will give adequate reassurances in regard to the freedom of Catholic education, and it is thought probable that the Vatican will consent to the dissolution of the Catholic Centre Party.—

WATER SUPPLY DOUBLED

HAPPY EFFECT OF THE HEAVY RAINS

All fears of a serious water shortage have now been allayed.
The rains during the storm of the past week have replenished the Island reservoirs to more than half their total capacity.

On Tuesday last when the 10-hour supply was given, the storage was only 550 million gallons but the total as recorded this morning is more than double that aggregate, being 1,270 million gallons. Constant supply on the Island was given on Saturday when the reservoirs held 908 million gallons.

It will be seen that in a week
the amount in storage has been considerably more than doubled.

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

FATE HANGING IN BALANCE

EUROPEAN GOLD BLOC NOT PLEASED

WALK-OUT DANGER

London, July 3.

Although no serious developments are to be expected until Mr. Cordell Hull has made the promised explanation of America's currency attitude, President Roosevelt's rejection of the gold resolution has had a depressing effect on the World Economic Conference.

The Continental delegates are wondering whether Mr. Roosevelt is playing for time, to permit the dollar to fall further, or whether he is serious in his suggestion that all countries should abandon the gold standard.

In some quarters it is felt that he has both objects in view. It is notable that his main objections to the formula presented concern the statement that it is desirable for countries at present on the gold standard to maintain their position and the further statement that non-gold countries should return to gold as soon as possible.

The immediate danger is the refusal of the Continental gold bloc to participate in further discussions at the Conference.

If a start was made, this prospect would have to be seriously contemplated. It is felt, however, that no member of the gold bloc will be willing to shoulder the responsibility for giving the lead to a walk-out of the Conference, although it is recognized that the feeling in Continental gold circles is by no means happy.

The French have definitely denied any intention of moving the adjournment of the Conference and possibly all other advocates of the gold standard will hold back from such a definite step even in the event of Mr. Cordell Hull's statement to-day bringing no concrete new suggestions.

AMERICANS NOT HOPEFUL.
As a number of Americans themselves appear to have little hope of much from Mr. Hull at the moment, it seems that the most likely course will be that they will be sought by the gold bloc for dissociating themselves from the conference without making a definite and obvious break.

This may possibly be achieved by withdrawing the chief financial representatives of the gold bloc from the conference.

There seems no doubt that the fate of the World Economic Conference hangs upon Mr. Cordell Hull's statement to-day, while forecasts from New York anticipate that the statement will leave matters very much as they were before the Conference.

There is some hope in London that he will give some indication of a plan by the United States for temporarily steadying the dollar in the foreign exchange market
through the Federal Reserve
Banks and foreign central banks.

DOWNING STREET ACTIVE.

Yesterday was exceedingly busy in Downing Street. Mr. Hull after a long conference with Professor Raymond Moley, had a forty-minute conversation with Mr. Ramsay MacDonald in the afternoon and subsequently Mr.
Neville Chamberlain and a number of other officials at the Foreign Office.

ST. LOUIS TWICE BLANKED OUT

CINCINNATI AND BOSTON ALSO

New York, July 2.
There were some sensational pitching feats in the National Baseball League to-day.

St. Louis were twice blanked out in a double header against New York Giants, Hubbell doing the trick in the first game and Parmelee emulating his example in the second.

Boston blanked out Cincinnati in the first game of a double header and then suffered the same fate in the second.

The Yankees scored a useful win and Philadelphia nosed out St. Louis in the first of a double header, but were decisively beaten in the second match.

Scores as cabled by Reuter were:

AMERICAN FLIERS KILLED

BOMBING PLANE CRASH

Langley Field, Va., June 25.
Four army fliers were killed today when their big bombing plane crashed into the James river from an undetermined cause. Their bodies were found in the wreckage of the sunken craft and will be removed to-morrow.

Those who met death were

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

HATS GLISTEN THIS SUMMER

Shiny Straws, Patent Leather, Cellophane Braids
Make Them Veritable Halos!

By Joan Savoy

No sooner have the spring hats bloomed on every head than summer hats appear which make you wish you could change your headpiece immediately.

There are many blacks, many whites, many blues on deck. Brims come with warmer sun. And so do gleaming things. Your hat will be a veritable halo this summer in rough shiny straws, patent leather trimmings, cellophane braids, and all sorts of glamorous and other fragile looking materials.

For the sophisticated woman there is a new little "high hat" made of shiny black cire straw, with a veil that flares down over your right eye and then stands up from the pleated little bonnet. A gleaming rhinestone pin in pointed design, adds sophisticated touch in front.

For that all-white mode for suits and dresses that is coming your way this summer, there is a white organdie hat, with double-cuffed gloves to match, made of the organdie. Black cire ribbon, laces up the bonnet and ties the wrists of the cuffs. In white pique, black patent leather serves these purposes.

This little ensemble has a youthfulness about it that is irresistible. Moreover, it carries with it a certain freshness that will make everybody looking at you feel cool on the hottest day.

There's something feminine and charming about the combinations of pink and blue that women will wear this summer.

One hat of this new Frenchy duet of tones is a tea-rose pink straw with just the right shade of blue-organza trimming it. The blue organza makes an over-brim, a drooping, lifting brim it is too, and then the blue ribbon is pleated almost to cover the crown. It has that tailored look that is seldom found in a dainty dress hat—the kind women look for in vain usually.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Billy broke a glass on the bathroom floor. Instantly his mother rushed for a dust pan and brush. She not only got up all the pieces but she went over the floor with a damp cloth afterward so that no microscopic bit could work into the soles of little feet and cause trouble.

Another glass had a chip out of the edge. Fearful lest one of the children cut a lip on it she threw it out.

A box-spring couch in the nursery suddenly threw out a loose wire that snared the unwary as they passed. She did not allow her husband to eat his dinner until he had procured a file and detached the inch of peril from its place.

All over the house she was ever on the alert for danger.

Wounds Cause Trouble.

And she was right because, as we know, big troubles can result from little wounds and anything that can cut or scratch is better removed at once.

Now there is, at Billy's house, a nice back yard, part of it lawn, part of it shrubbery and part flower beds. There is also a small service yard next the garage where garbage-can and rubbish-barrel hide their ignominy behind a vine-covered lattice.

In the play part of the yard there is a swing and a swinging bar. The lawn is tramped pretty flat here. The children are supposed to stay away from flower beds, shrubbery, and service yard.

"Accidents Will Happen"

One very warm day Billy and his sister were allowed to go in their bare feet.

Billy's ball went into a flower bed just beginning to show green. He went tippy toe after it and cut a long gash on a piece of white china that had not been picked up when the man spaded it.

A few days later they were playing "I-spy," and Bunny, his sister, found a hiding hole behind the rubbish-barrel. She wasn't supposed to be there but she was. She just forgot. She cut her foot on a piece of ink bottle.

Safety First! Clean Up

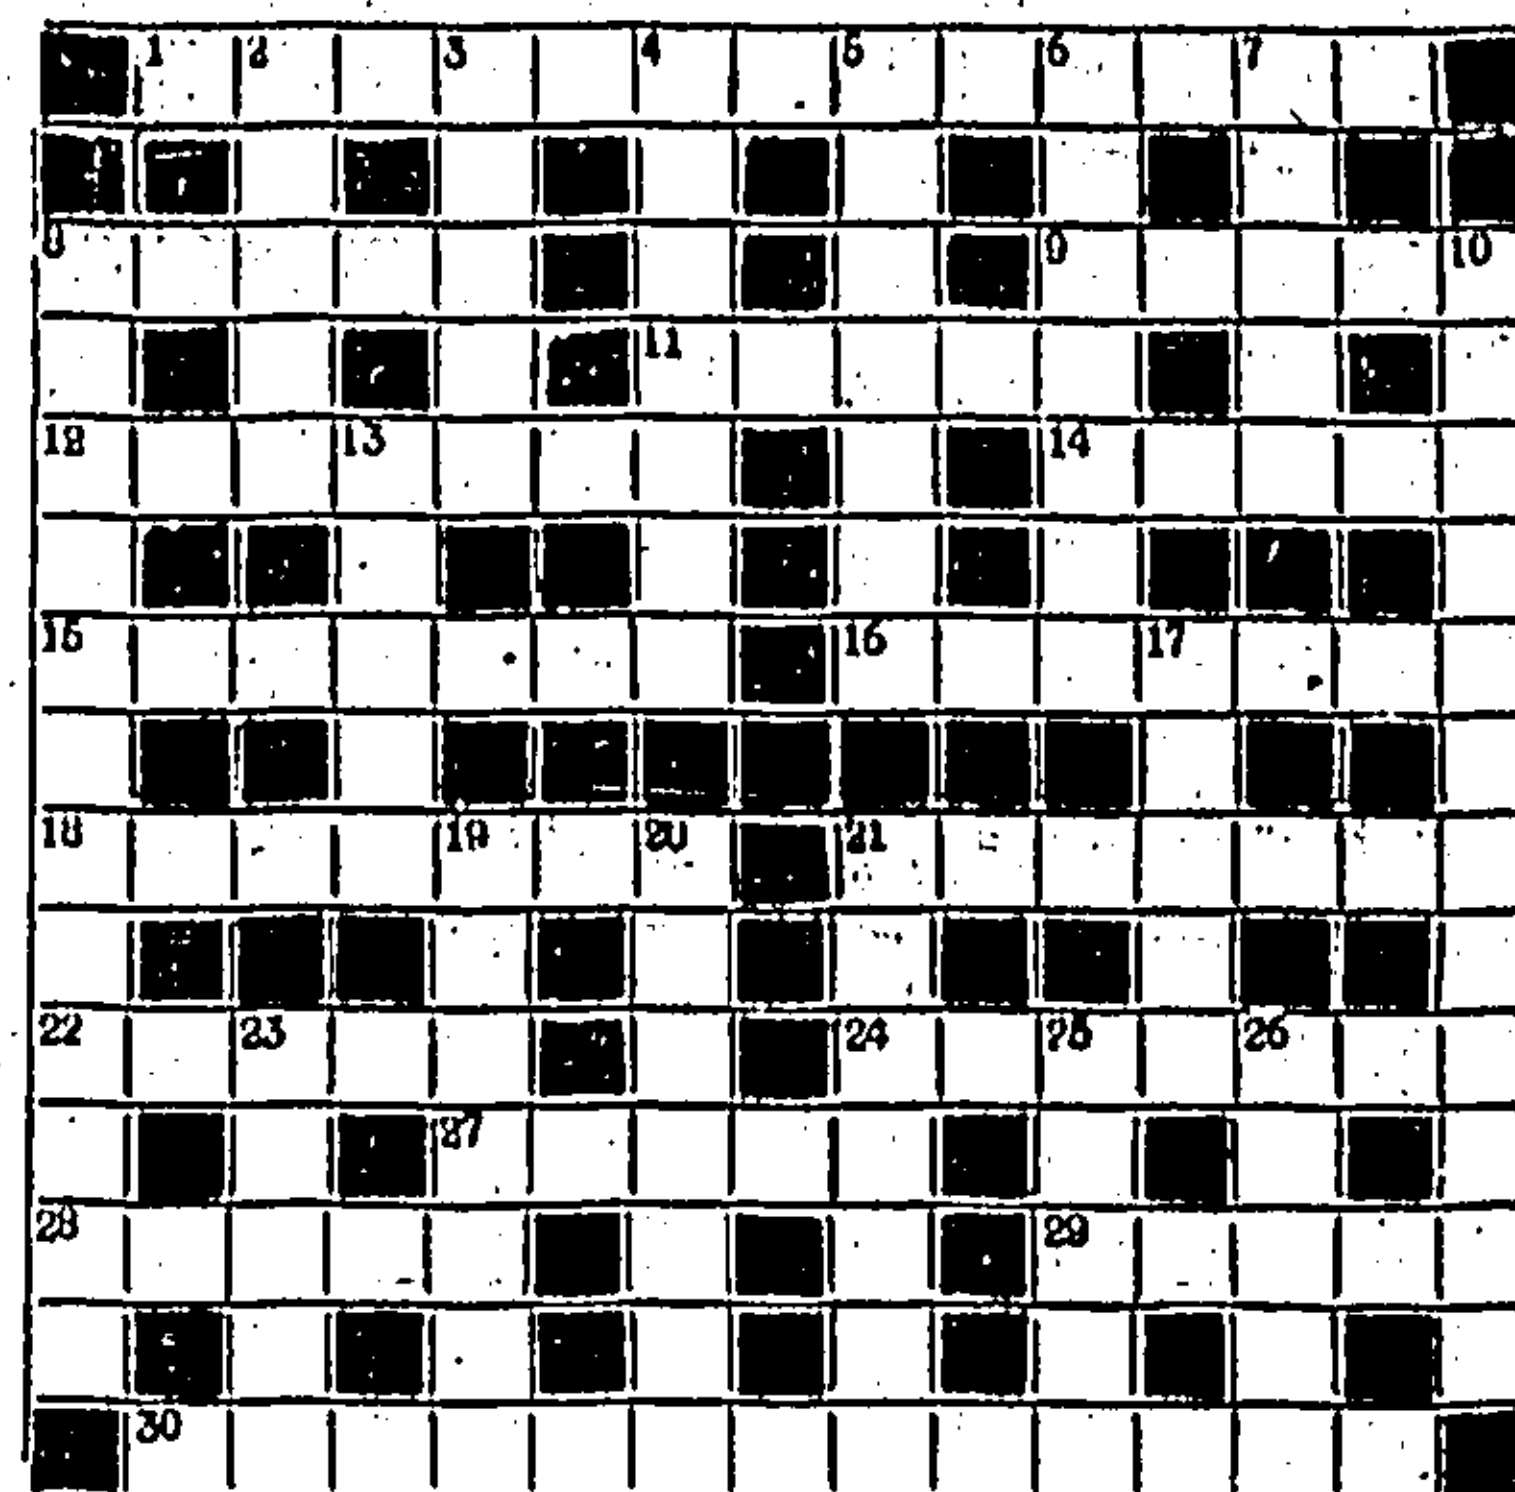

Now these two little feet healed up all right in a day or two, but another big boy, a neighbour, got a nail through his shoe when he was trying to get snowballs off the big bush next door. This proved to be serious. Blood poisoning set in.

I heard Billy's mother and father talking about it. Mr. Smith was berating Mrs. Smith for not seeing that the yard was kept as safe as the house. And she in turn told him it was his job. "The children have orders to keep where it's safe," she said. "I do watch their playground."

He scoffed at this. "Orders! Humph! Kids are hopping all over the place. Get Tony to-morrow to go over the whole yard and the one next door too. Tell him not to leave even a rusty pin."

We cannot all have Tonies to pick up for us, but we do have hands. Yards should be kept as safe as houses.

On Second Thought!

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McCELLIOT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONNIE O'DARE is secretly engaged to DAN CARDIGAN, heir to a local fortune. Dan doesn't want his parents to know of the engagement as they oppose the marriage. He and Monnie plan to elope in January when he will come into some money of his own. Dan is jealous of CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newcomer, who shows Monnie marked attention.

CHAPTER XXII

Sandra, in a deep chair of stick willow with cushions daintily striped in yellow and orange, leaned back and regarded her caller thoughtfully.

"I think you're perfectly right, Geraldine," she observed, lighting a cigarette with a flick of her long, slim fingers. "I think people are talking and it would be well to get him away."

"But that's just the trouble," protested Dan's sister who, lean and vigorous in her white linen riding outfit, lounged in the porch swing. "He won't go. Mother wanted him to go to Yosemite with her. He says he's too busy. Then my cousin May wrote us about this dude ranch. It's what Dan has always been crazy about—and I thought if you'd go along we could make up a party—"

She left the sentence hanging. Sandra's eyes sparkled.

"It would be fun," she said with enthusiasm. "You and I—and Danny and perhaps Lansing Waterman. He gets home next week. I wonder—"

"My dear!" Geraldine's laugh held a touch of malice. "That would be perfect if we could swing it. Two birds with one stone."

"Leave it to me!" Sandra got to her feet, smiling. "I'll see what can be done."

Geraldine's voice held a note of envy.

"You're a wonder," she breathed. "If you can do it, mother will be everlastingly grateful. What she says, of course, is that she could put her foot down—be firm with Dan about seeing her so much—but she would just make him mullish. You know how he can be! Just that touch of opposition," averred Geraldine wisely, "might lead to something serious. Where—"

Sandra finished the sentence for her. "Whereas," she cried gayly, "we lure Danny off to this delicious place, have a grand time and meanwhile he forgets all about the girl back home."

"Exactly!" Geraldine's lean brown face, so like Dan's but without the touch of softness which would have made her, as a woman, irresistible, flushed with excitement.

But they reckoned without their host this time. Dan was mullish, refusing to leave Belvedere for any prospect, however alluring. His father, consulted as to plans, brought pressure to bear, summoning Dan to his private office one golden August morning.

Dan liked and respected his father. The keen-eyed, graying man usually kept his hands out of household affairs, preferring to let his wife decide such matters. This time, however, he had not been allowed to choose the line of least resistance. There had been a conference in Mrs. Cardigan's dressing room the night before. This interview was the result.

"Dan, what's this I hear about you not wanting a vacation with mother and the folks?"

Dan squirmed uncomfortably. "I had enough vacation. Thought I'd stick around and see how things are going. I know they haven't been so good for us lately."

His father interrupted, rather testily. "Never mind, son. Set her heart on this trip and wants you along. I don't know what the notion is, exactly. Bears, maybe. You're to save 'em from dangers on this dude ranch." His eyes twinkled.

"Those places are safe as Main street," Dan muttered, sullenly. "Don't see why I have to go traipsing off with all those women. Anyhow, they'll have plenty of protection. Lance Waterman'll be there and both the Franklin kids. They're grown up now. As for bears," his tone was contemptuous, "Gerry and Sandra can handle a gun as well as I can."

"I know that. I know that." His father's voice was a rumble deep in his throat. It made the old man uncomfortable to lecture Dan this way. No sense to it, at all. It was rank foolishness, spending all that money on a trip with the market the way it'd been. He was worried about money, no mistake about it. No good suggesting it to Mother, though. She'd just flare up and tell him he ought to manage things better. Well, maybe he should have done that. Worried about money, that made him think of something else he'd been meaning to speak to Dan about.

He cleared his throat, embarrassed. "Dan—uh—what's this I hear about you and Sandra?"

"Me and—?" Dan looked blank for an instant, then smiled. "I'm sure, Dad, I don't know what you've heard."

"Mother thinks Sandra's pretty sweet on you. Now don't get sore, boy. You know how mothers are. Mother'd be mighty pleased to see you make a go of that and so, I might say, would I. Sandra's a fine girl, you know. Sick as a race horse—lots of spirit. Now don't misunderstand me, Dan, but she's got lots of money. What passes for a fortune these days. Her father's a shrewd business man and he's done some smart investing. Sandra's all he's got."

Dan had turned in his chair, was looking unseeing out of the window. He did not reply. "It would be a fine thing for you, every way you look at it," persisted the old man. "I'm not saying this without having given the matter thought." He glanced un- easily at the silent young man.

"Well, I'll say no more. I won't bother you about it now. Only—the business isn't what I hoped it would be, son. You've been brought up to you. You've been brought up to like expensive things. I'd be the last one in the world to suggest you should marry a girl for her money, but there's no question of that in this particular case. No man in his senses could help admiring Sandra."

He waited for affirmation and Dan accorded it, grudgingly. "I suppose not," he said.

"Good. Good! I'm glad you feel that way about it. That's why I agreed to talk to you about this trip. It would please mother, it would please Sandra and, most of all, it would please me. How about it?"

"Let me think about it, Dad!" Dan pleaded awkwardly.

"Certainly. Certainly." Both men were on their feet now, re- lieved that the interview was at an end. "But don't make up your mind without thinking about what I've said."

When Dan met Monnie that night he told her of it—baldly, not sparing her.

"Dan wants me to go west with Sandra and the crowd. He thinks I ought to fix it up with Sandra—make a go of it."

He could not see how white she had turned in the darkness. Her voice, when it came, was cool, a trifle distant. "What are you going to do about it?"

Dan felt particularly badgered that day. He was thoroughly out of temper. Monnie's disposition- ate gentleness only served to ir- ritate him further. He said what he had not meant to say—what he did not really feel.

"Oh, guess I better string along with them, just to please Mother. It might be fun."

Monnie withdrew her hand from his arm where he had tucked it only a moment ago.

"Go by all means if you feel like that," she told him. Her heart was very sore. It was full to bursting. Things had gone along too smoothly of late, she reminded herself. Dan had been so sweet and considerate. She had felt so secure, so happy, with the knowledge of their secret troth deep in her heart, with Dan's seal ring in the bottom of her

This painting, titled "Daughters of Revolution," has created a storm of protest in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where members of the Daughters of the American Revolution have demanded it be removed from the city gallery. The painting is by Grant Wood, foremost Iowa painter, resident of Cedar Rapids.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

In seafaring tradition, a captain always sticks by his ship. And true to the custom, William (Stage) Boyd furnished plenty of hilarity at Catalina Island, thereby during the filming of the Fox picture "The Painted Woman" which opens on Thursday at the King's Theatre.

Not scheduled to work before the cameras for an hour, Boyd decided to take one of the Tahitian outrigger canoes used in the picture for a trip around the day. Clad in the resplendent blue uniform he wears as the skipper of a big South Seas schooner, Boyd embarked on the craft and headed bravely out to sea.

Watchers on the beach saw him turn around after proceeding a considerable length of way toward the mainland and paddle furiously back to shore. Halfway in he commenced paddling with one hand and bailing with the other. Then, suddenly, the canoe sank gracefully beneath him, with Boyd valiantly staying by his vessel till the last, and then treasure box, a pledge and a promise. Now they were taking him away from her, coolly, deliberately.

"You shouldn't even think of staying here if you want to go," she said aloofly.

"You little fool!" Dan crushed her to him roughly. They were sitting in the shadows on the side porch. "Better not tell me that too often. Maybe I'll take you at your word."

"Oh Dan!" She was in his arms, the salt tears trembling on her lashes. "You hurt me so—I thought you wanted to be with them. The way you said it—and, after all, why shouldn't you? It must be fun. Why should I keep you away from it?"

"It'd be rotten without you," Dan told her loyally. "No, I haven't the slightest intention of giving in. I told Father I'd think it over, but my mind's made up."

After he had gone Monnie thought bitterly that all their lives Dan would be giving things up for her. It was the eternal battle between the rich and the poor. He loved her now and so it did not matter. But how would it be later on? Would he hate her for taking him away from the easy life he had loved?

She fell asleep, wondering. (To Be Continued)

LONDON TRAGEDY RECALLED

MARRIAGE, DIVORCE
& DEATH IN AN HOUR

COURT BEAUTY PASSES

Belgrade.
The death at Nice of Olga Korzakov, a 68 year old Russian refugee, who once lived in London, recalls the amazing tragedy of her youth, which resulted in a young officer being married, divorced and shot within one hour.

Olga Korzakov lived in Moscow when she was sixteen. She was the most striking beauty at the Russian Court, where she was taken by her father, who was one of the Tzar's closest friends. Many men clamoured for her hand and among them were officers of all ranks of the Royal Guard. Among these was a young Captain, Rozvolski.

One night, when Rozvolski and his friends were carousing, they heard by chance that Olga's father had been suddenly called away from home. Rozvolski conceived a bold plan to win the girl. He went to her house, claimed to have brought a message from her father, saw Olga and persuaded her to accompany him to his apartment. Once there she was forced to join in their feast and stay the night.

TRAGIC HOUR.

On her father's return she told him what had happened. He rushed at once to the Tzar and informed him. The Tzar ordered a special parade of officers, during which Olga picked out Rozvolski as the culprit.

The Tzar immediately sent for a priest and ordered him to marry Captain Rozvolski to Olga Korzakov. When the ceremony was completed, he ordered him to divorce them immediately. This ceremony was also speedily completed. Then Rozvolski's badges of rank were torn from him, he was marched away under escort, and within an hour of being married he was shot.

The dead officer left a huge fortune, which went to his bride of one hour. But she could never forget the tragedy of her wedding. She travelled extensively, lived long in London, Paris and Rome. She died recently in Nice. The news of her death reminded a Russian refugee in Belgrade of her tragic history, which was described in a newspaper article. —Reuter.

"A PURE UNDILUTED JOY—"

"The Vauxhall Cadet is a powerful, roomy and comfortable car and it possesses two obvious advantages. One, a silent second, must appeal alike to expert and novice. The other, the Synchron-Mesh gear changing is so novices, like myself, a pure undiluted joy."

So writes this Synchron-Mesh enthusiast. Try it for yourself—you cannot make a bad "change!" Smooth acceleration, decisive braking, steering that is effortless and ample power—all these you will find in the Vauxhall Cadet.

You will use less petrol than you'd expect. Modern lines, riding comfort, luxurious coachwork, tasteful colour schemes, headlights and radiator flares in gleaming chromium, mark the Cadet as being a distinctly different car.

Prices from £295. Arrange for a trial run.

C.E.R. DISPUTE

The official parleys between Russia and Manchukuo with the object of negotiating the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway are proceeding in an atmosphere of the closest secrecy. Practically nothing of an authoritative nature has been disclosed regarding the trend of the discussions since the conference opened at Tokyo last Monday, a fact which seems to suggest that there is more than mere surmise in the suggestion that political issues are forming an important feature. Ostensibly Japan is holding aloof, allowing Manchukuo and the Soviet to settle "their dispute" between themselves. Count Uchida opened the conference by expressing the earnest desire of the Japanese Government for the success of the deliberations, and after M. Yureneff, the chief Russian delegate, and General Ting Hsih-yuan, the Manchukuo Minister, had responded politely, the Japanese attending the ceremony retired. It was also given out that Japan wanted to settle the question as a purely commercial deal. There is rumour, however, that important political questions are on the agenda. One Japanese source declares that among the points receiving consideration are (1) the question of a non-aggression pact between the U.S.S.R. and Japan (2) the question of the abandonment of North Saghalien by Soviet Russia and (3) the question of fishing rights in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Shigemitsu is believed to be undertaking the negotiation for Japan. The suggestion is that Japan is seeking to obtain every possible gain from the obvious desire of Russia to steer clear of a disastrous upheaval in the Far East. If such is the case, the Russian delegates will receive all their share of the Japan's political and military aspirations are too completely dove-tailed in the programme alleged to have been submitted for discussion to permit anything but acute suspicion. At the same time, it is doubtful whether the Soviet representatives have arrived in Tokyo armed with the necessary authority to discuss these issues, which have been a perennial source of friction between Russia and Japan. Between conflicting reports, it is difficult to choose that which comes nearest to the truth, but in view of the great importance attached by Japan to the purchase by Manchukuo of the Chinese Eastern Railway, implying as the transaction would, Russian recognition of the puppet State, the likelihood of the broaching of such controversial questions would seem to be remote. Japanese diplomacy is usually far more subtle than such a procedure would denote.

The World's Biggest City

London is a geographical expression, variously defined; but as a unit of population clustering in scores of suburbs and dormitory towns round its metropolitan centre it is still the biggest city in the world, and it has lately been growing at an unmanageable rate. Thus regarded, "Greater London," as it is called, has an area of 700 square miles, and includes about one-quarter of the inhabitants of England. In the ten years between 1921 and 1931 the population of its outer area increased by more than 1,000,000, and it has been continuously spreading since then. It has been throwing out ungainly tentacles over the once rural areas that surrounded it, and in spite of the riot of new building that has gone on continuously since the war, there is still overcrowding at the centre. This vast problem has been under the systematic consideration of a body known as the Greater London Regional Planning Committee. How easy it is for un-directed growth to spoil a huge area may be judged by the fact that of the 700 square miles affected only 400 are actually occupied as building sites. The houses are scattered, here in lumps of population, there in ribbon development along the roads. But there is much that may yet be done by planning new building within the area, and strictly controlling new development on the fringe. The plan envisages a "green girdle" as near to the completely urbanized area of London as possible, for playing fields and pleasure spaces, and the definition of the areas outside the girdle, some for building according to plan, some for public spaces. A particularly important part of the scheme takes account of the new industries which tend more and more to collect in the neighbourhood of London. These, it is pointed out, should be planned as parts of complete units with residential areas and trading centres suitably combined. Thus the scheme indicates the grouping of industries and the grouping of subsidiary centres of population, and the simultaneous planning of housing and traffic facilities. Much will depend on the good will and initiative of local authorities. It is not enough to have a good plan. The next, and usually more difficult, thing is to get it carried out.

A VISIT TO INFERNO

By H. R. WELLS

CHAPTER I. THE HOLIDAY.

There was a scholar living in Cheung Chau in the Fukien Province who had gained the degree of Doctor of Literature. His name was Ting Lan-kat, and he also had the name Mung Ling, or the "dream spirit". When he was still a young student, twenty-four years of age, it happened that on the ninth day of the ninth Moon, a day much observed among the Chinese as a great festival, he took the opportunity to ascend a mountain, according to custom. He took with him a bottle of wine for refreshment, and wandered over the hills admiring the scenery. He was by himself and heard nothing but the movements of the leaves on the pine trees and the other trees of the wood, and the whispering sound of the falling leaves. Suddenly he sat down on the top of the hill and poured himself out a few cups of wine which he drank. Suddenly a great gust of wind whirled by, blowing the leaves about on the ground until they whirled about as if boiling, and almost as if they had their own ideas and sense. Lan-kat said, "This wind is very delightful and yet it is strange. Surely it cannot be a spirit or demon passing by?" But in case there might be such a thing he at once poured out three cups of wine as a libation.

When the wine reached the ground, the wind and the leaves turned about and passed on.

CHAPTER II. THE JOURNEY TO HADES.

In a moment Lan-kat became as if he were drunk and he slept, and then he appeared to observe a man dressed in a uniform of a bluish grey colour who came before him and bowed, saying, "Mr. Ting, you really are a good man. Thank you very much for your gift of wine." Lan-kat replied, "Honoured Sir, who are you? Why do you speak thus?"

Bluecoat said, "I am a messenger, a sort of police officer or runner from the nether world. I was on my way to a certain city with a despatch to the god of the city moat, and I was just passing this place." "When I was a man in the world of men I had a great craving for wine, and to-day, when I suddenly smelt the fragrance of wine, I could not control my feelings, so I stayed near here and thanks to your great generosity, my vinous throat has been irrigated and moistened. How can I repay such an expression of goodwill?" Lan-kat raised his hands to salute the man, and said, "Honoured Sir, you are a responsible officer of the other world, and know all about the conditions of that world. I have heard that there are eighteen grades or stages in Hades or Hell but I do not know the truth about these stages. I have always wanted to go and examine the place for myself, but there is road by which one may go, and everything about that world is so mysterious. Could you possibly take me to walk about there and see the conditions?"

Bluecoat said, "That is as easy as picking up beans, in fact easier, because in picking up beans one has to stoop down to pick them up." Lan-kat said, "If you take me there you must bring me back again!" Bluecoat said, "That is a matter of course. Is it likely that I would take you away to death?"

THE GREATEST GOOD AND EVIL.

So they went along together, and after a time they reached a place where it grew darker, and they saw a great many people coming and going, and soon they came to a large palace and stopped in front of the door. Bluecoat said, "You wait here while I go and give my report to the officials. After I have done that I will take you for a walk to investigate the conditions." "But when I go in, if it should happen that there is much business to be attended to, and I cannot come out soon, you need not worry. I shall certainly be able to manage it." He then went inside the palace, and Lan-kat waited outside. He saw a pair of scrolls on a large iron plate on which there were ten large characters in words in two antithetical sentences of five words each. One also read, "Of all evils fornication or adultery is the chief," and on the other "Of all good deeds the principal one is filial piety."

He also saw a great many people passing along. Some were sitting in sedan chairs, some rode on horseback, some were in carriages, some were in canopies and some free, others were in chains. Some came sauntering along swaying their arms and limbs in an easy style, others again came with heads downcast as if in the depths of despondency.

He observed that some who came out of the palace seemed to be very pleased, as pleased as heaven and earth. Some howled and wept bitterly, some went away wearing long official robes, some had ragged coats and trousers. Some were clad in cow's hide or skins of horses, and some in skins of dogs and sheep. Everything that was to be seen in the world was also to be seen in appearance in the nether world. One crowd was going, and another multitude was coming. The mountain of knives, the tree of sorrow, the sea of bitterness and the lake of blood could be seen in the distance, yet they appeared to be close to the eye.

CHAPTER III. THE ENTRANCE.

After about half an hour, Bluecoat came out and said, "I know that you have been kept waiting for me a long time. I have been delayed on account of various matters of business."

Ting Lan-kat said, "Well, well, there really is a nether world related to the world of men. I have read about this in books for a very long time, but I have been very sceptical about it. This was very wrong of me."

Bluecoat replied, "Well, people are in the world for less than a hundred years. Those who do good are rewarded by blessing but the amount of their happiness and peace is limited."

"Those who do evil meet with calamity, but their bitterness and sorrow is also limited. Therefore, the Creator has ordained that those who are really good should be rewarded with great blessings and dwell in Heaven for thousands of years and even for ever and ever."

"For instance there were Man Cheung and Kwann Tai, the gods of literature and war, who were beings promoted to godhead. Do you not agree that they ought to be in heaven?"

"Those on the other hand who are very bad have great trouble and sorrow and are in Hell for thousands of years, in fact for eternity, such people as Tao Tiao and Tsan Wai, who were regarded as traitors. Do you not agree that they ought to be in Hell?"

"There are many others besides these. Some are from the mountains of the genii and from the Kingdom of Buddha. They have left the world but they have enjoyment and ease. Of course, you know this. Do you think this kind of gladness and joy comes from doing good or from following the paths of sin?"

"In the world there is a class of very good people, and also some are very bad. Those who are very good are ordained to enjoy the greatest happiness, and so you may readily understand that the very bad people are condemned to the greatest trouble and bitterness and grief."

"As to those who are half good and half evil, there must also be a method of dealing with them, and trying their cases, and seeing that they receive their due reward."

"Scholars use their own judgment as to the ancient records of the genii and Buddhas. How did it come to pass that Kan Lai-kung was the person (Continued on Next Column.)"

The Very Idea!

WE HAD A MESSAGE By Eddie Kelly, Manufacturer

As we stood before the mirror this morning, thoughtfully stroking our aquiline features, we be-thought that our sylph-like figure was not looking its best.

It is so singular a creature, a creature of activities and delicacies that denote the real Kelly were slipping into a corset. Either a constitutional or a message was indicated. As our chit account has been stopped at the hotel, there was only one thing for it.

Editor's note: You could have taken up sport. Sporting Editor's note: If you're asking for my resignation, Editor's note: No, no, but you could have done exercises like these film stars do.

"Celluloid's" note: If you are sneering at my page, Editor's note: No, no, but perhaps even dancing, Editor's note: We refuse to foot-note these innuendoes. We maintain a SCORNFUL AND DIGNIFIED SILENCE (partly because we cannot make ourselves heard and partly because we can't think of anything to say.)

Getting on with the story, before we were so rudely interrupted. We betook ourselves to the masseur, and asked for an estimate. We didn't haggle about the price, so after the little difference of opinion regarding cash payment had been settled, we undressed.

We have only a dim recollection of what passed as we lay in the altogether, having our limbs kneaded and oiled, and our chassis tapped and lubricated like a scruffy Ford.

Do we remember the ceiling as we gazed appealingly into its pure white face, and the table as we pressed our nose into its unyielding surface? All else was blank.

No one will ever know the agony we bravely bore as he waved our left leg beyond our reach, and twisted our other frail understanding into a passable imitation of the Swastika.

Nor will anyone ever plumb the depths of our passion as he tied our arms into a reef knot, knelt into the small of our back, and, while he intimately stroked our corpuses, discoursed on the dispersion of incomplete metabolisms by the physiological activity induced by Swedish massage.

Accusing us, Edward Kelly, of being an incomplete metabolism! We admit we don't know what it is, but we're sure that we're not it, whatever it is, and, anyway, if we were it, which we strongly deny, although we are not sure what it is, we would not be it incomplete, anyway.

Above is an interval where we have attended the Hongkong Hotel for a "restorative" and antidote against the ill-treatment we had from that ghastly fellow

This is another interval in which we had another antidote against the brutal attack of that fellow

Meanwhile—yes, this is an interval where we have had another antidote against that beastly fellow. Meanwhile we have felt so strongly about it that we have decided to consult our solicitors.

The Cinema Critic has just told us what it is, so there will be nothing between the intervals now.

son appointed to mark and adjudicate on the essays, and Tong Chung-kwai was a learned doctor in Naam Shan? Yet they were full of doubts and did not believe, and said that all things were foolish and superstitious if they could not be seen with their own eyes."

Ting Lan-kat replied, "That is absolutely true". Bluecoat continued, "If you only reckon that what you see is true, and what you do not see is false, then the shades and uniforms must be false and fabulous animals, and such people as Fuk Hsi and Pan Koo are false and only fabulous men."

Ting Lan-kat said, "But in such cases there are books of proof." Bluecoat replied, "Yes, there are books, but are there not also books on the subject of Hell?"

THE LIFE OF BLUECOAT. Ting Lan-kat said, "Well, well, to hear you speak is really to hear a first class essay or discussion. You (Continued on Page 2.)"

CAPT. YOSHI OKUNO

LINK WITH RICHARD TREVITHICK

GREAT-GRANDSON

Captain Yoshi Okuno, who will be well known to many Hongkong residents who have travelled to England on the N.Y.K. liner Hakusan Maru as its popular commander, is a great-grandson of Richard Trevithick, the noted Cornish inventor, whose centenary is celebrated this year. Christened Richard Trevithick after his great-grandfather and grandfather, Captain Okuno, many years ago, assumed Japanese nationality, and took the name of his mother, a Japanese lady.

This relationship was discovered by Mr. Alfred Hicks, editor of the Hongkong Telegraph, who recently left Hongkong on Home leave aboard the s.s. Hakusan Maru, accompanied by his wife. Mr. Hicks, whilst having a chat with Captain Okuno, in the latter's cabin, noticed a photograph of a statue of Richard Trevithick, the inventor, occupying a prominent place, and when he inquired into Captain Okuno's interest in the subject of the photograph, the latter replied: "I am Richard Trevithick's great-grandson."

In the course of further conversation, Captain Okuno stated that his father, Francis Henry Trevithick, a grandson of the inventor went out to Japan in 1876 as chief superintendent of the locomotive department of the Japanese Government railways, and as adviser in connexion with the construction of Japan's first railway line, from Tokyo to Yokohama. "As his grandfather could claim to have been the pioneer of the locomotive, so could my father claim to have been the pioneer of railways in Japan," remarked Captain Okuno.

Took to the Sea.

Capt. Okuno's father remained in Japan until 1897, and during his lengthy stay there he married a Japanese lady. There were four children by the marriage, Capt. Okuno being the eldest. The children remained in Japan for many years, with their mother, after their father returned to England. After the mother's death, one of the four children, a girl, died; Captain Okuno remained in Japan for a time, and a brother and sister came to England, where they are still living, in Birmingham. It is interesting to note that both these children recently attended the Trevithick centenary service in Westminster Abbey. In 1901, Captain Okuno came to England from Japan, having adopted a seagoing career. From 1901 to 1904, he served his time in sailing ships, and then successively joined the Bucknall Line and the Atlantic Transport Line as officer. Later, he took Japanese nationality and his mother's name and became an officer in the leading Japanese steamship company, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, and obtained command in 1916. He has remained in this company ever since. Captain Okuno's father died in 1931, and it was a fortunate circumstance that the son was in England at the time and was able to be present at the funeral.

Proud of the Link

Capt. Okuno, who is an extremely popular commander on the N.Y.K. Line, and who speaks English, French, and Japanese fluently, still maintains regular contact with his brother and sister, and always stays with them at Birmingham when his ship touches at London. Twice married, on each occasion to a Japanese lady, he has two sons, one by each wife. He is very proud of his link with the inventor of the locomotive, and amongst the most treasured of his possessions is a model of a hammer, made in gold and silver, with a suitable inscription, which was presented to his father by the Japanese Government on the 50th anniversary of the introduction of railway into Japan.

LOAN APPROVED

COMPLETION OF CANTON-HANKOW RAILWAY

Nanking, July 1.

After considering the matter for nine months, the board of the Chinese-British Boxer Indemnity Fund has approved the loan of £4,300,000 for the completion of the Canton-Hankow Railway. Of this sum, £1,200,000 will be secured by the flotation of bonds.

The delay is due to the Board's carelessness regarding security, which will consist of a surcharge on passengers and freight on all national railway revenues on the Peking-Hankow Railway, the Nanking-Pukow train ferry, and the section of the Canton-Hankow Railway between Canton and the Kwangtung border. —Reuter.

DEATH OF YORKSHIRE PAINTER

MR. J. WALTER WEST

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 1. Mr. J. Walter West, the well known Yorkshire painter, has died.

Educated at Bootham School, York, and later passing through the Royal Academy School, London, Mr. West won the first silver medal of the Royal Academy for drawing the head from life. The picture was purchased by the Chantrey Trustees for the Tate Gallery in 1913.

Later becoming a member of the Society of Mural Decorators and Painters in Tempera, the deceased had works accepted for the permanent collections of Birmingham, Liverpool, Hull, Preston, Reading, Birkenhead and Wanganui, New Zealand. He was a painter in oil, water colour and tempera, as well as designer of book-plates and posters, a lithographer and illuminator.

Mr. West was also responsible for Underground Railway posters.

N.Y. PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER

Death of Rev. Henry Howard, D.D.

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 1. The Rev. Henry Howard, D.D., Litt. D., prominent Presbyterian minister, passed away to-day at the age of 74.

The Rev. Howard was pastor of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church from 1926 to the time of his death. Born in Melbourne he was first associated with the Adelaide Central Methodist Mission of which he was superintendent from 1905 to 1921. He was also temporarily in charge of the Wesleyan Church, Prince Arthur Road, Hampstead, London, before taking up his last living in New York.

He was the author of a number of books of religious themes, his last publication being "The Defeat of Fear" in 1931.

CAPTAIN FRUSTRATES POSSIBLE PIRACY

ON TIENTSIN MARU

Dairen, July 2.

What might have developed into another piracy was frustrated by the determined action taken by the skipper of the s.s. Tientsin Maru when five suspicious looking foreigners boarded the vessel at Tangku yesterday morning, and refused to disembark when ordered.

Although it meant delaying the departure of the vessel, the Captain summoned the Chinese police, who arrested the foreigners and conveyed them to Tientsin.

The story was recounted when the Tientsin Maru arrived here this afternoon. —Reuter.

out of the picture scoring his first "blow" of the season. Ditcha failed to remain long and F. Kernan also fell for a "duck," so that after Tom Madara's dismissal, things looked gloomy for the Reds, but at this point of the match, C. J. Smith came in to make a great stand knocking up 27 runs in a good innings with "Coco" Ollerdean. Inspired thus, the remaining batsmen hit out successfully and Cochran claimed 23 runs and Torry Wilson added 10, the last two batsmen being instrumental in saving the day for the Reds.

The Police opened weakly with Gash and Barton, the latter falling early and it was not until the advent of Bailey and Quayle that runs commenced to mount up. The latter has lost none of his prowess despite the increasing years and hit out strongly to score 33 runs, following which there was a bad rot, Aston being the only one to get into double figures and the whole side was out for 194 thereby giving the game to the Reds.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

TRUST NOT IN HIM THAT SEEMS A SAINT.—Fuller.

When the M.M. liner Chenonceaux arrives in Hongkong to-morrow, she will not continue to Shanghai, but will return to Marseilles via Saigon to replace the temporarily disabled Aramis. The Aramis will be ready to sail from Hongkong for Marseilles on Tuesday, July 10.

FOOCHOW CALMS DOWN

STUDENT AGITATION CEASES

(Our Own Correspondent).

Fortunately there has been no apparent sequel to the protest by students and others against the Armistice in the north. It would seem that wiser counsels had prevailed; and the students have gone on quietly with their lawful avocations, and have been busy during the last couple of weeks in preparing to persuade their teachers that they know a great deal more than they really do in other words swotting up for examinations.

Even the opposition to the Government's "Uniform Examination" for boys and girls finishing their school courses has come to a sudden and satisfactory conclusion, thanks mainly to the firmness of the Government authorities, who made it clear that any private school whose pupils refused to take the Exam would be forthwith deprived of its registration and all privileges connected therewith.

This enabled the heads of schools, some of whom had almost openly sympathized with their pupils in opposing the Government, to threaten strong action against any who jeopardised the existence of their schools, and the result has been that all the pupils have taken the Exam. This refers to Foochow and North Fukien.

In South Fukien and Amoy, according to all accounts, things have been much more serious, and violence has been shown by the students. The Educational Commissioner has despatched a representative to see what can be done about it. But meantime the Foochow students are hoping that, as they were so good as to go in for the Exam in the end, the examiners will be specially lenient, and allow them all to pass.

The weather of late has been what we usually have in June, and the less said about it the better. We look forward to the autumn with its dry, bracing air, warm days and cool nights; but the time is not yet.

GOODS STILL HELD UP AT POGRANTCHAY

London, July 1.

Foreign firms who are suffering great losses as a result of the holding up of their freights at Pograntchay, owing to the suspension of through traffic between the Ussuri and North Manchurian Railways, are vigorously protesting, according to reports from Khabarovsk.

The responsibility for the loss, according to the Manchurian authorities, lies with the Soviet, whom they accuse of refusing to organize trans-shipment for import and export freights at the frontier station. —Reuter.

NANKING PREMIER VISITS CHIANG.

MR. WANG CHING-WEI'S QUIET DEPARTURE

Nanking, July 2. Some attention has been aroused in Government circles by the secret departure from Nanking yesterday afternoon of the Premier, Mr. Wang Ching-wei, and his secretary, Mr. Tseng Chung-ming, for Shanghai.

Official circles make no report on Mr. Wang's journey, but it is known that in Shanghai he and Mr. H.H.Kung and Tseng Chung-ming will board a Government aeroplane, a Ford machine, for Kluksiang, to interview Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei's care in avoiding publicity has caused some speculation.

The final scenes of the picture—the examination of suspects and the recreation of the crime—have been remarkably well portrayed by both director and cast. The combination of the excitement of football with the excitement of a murder mystery has resulted in an unusually thrilling finale.

The cast which is of uniform excellence includes Phillips Holmes as Buck, John Mack Brown as Clark, Dorothy Jordan as Clark's sister, Charlie Ruggles as the newspaper reporter, David Ladd as the detective, J. Farrell MacDonald as the State football coach, Lew Cody as the gambler, Kenneth Thomson as the team doctor, and Big Boy Williams, George Rosener, Walter Hiers, Paul Page, Reed Howes and John David Horsley in supporting roles.

"Marry Me" The countless thousands of admirers of Renate Muller's art since her brilliant performance in "Sunshine Susie" will be delighted to learn that she will again be seen in "Marry Me," described as a lively and lovely success to "Susie," which is now showing at the King's Theatre. She is aided and abetted in this picture by a superb cast, which includes such names as Harry Green, George Robey, Billy Caryl, Ian Hunter, Maurice Evans, Charles Hawtrey, Viola Lyel, and Sunday Wilkin. They all keep the ball of fun rolling merrily.

The story, briefly, tells of the love Ann Linden (Renate Muller) pretty recordist in the Olympic Gramophone factory for Robert Hart (Ian Hunter) a fellow employee, one of three brothers who share a happy-go-lucky flat. Anne's affections are not reciprocated, with the warmth she aspires to, for the eyes and heart of Robert are set upon a rich marriage. She thereupon takes the advice of her manager (Arthur Sturges) and adopts "football tactics" in her attempt to secure her Robert. As part of these tactics she enters the Hart's home as housekeeper, only to disappear just when the delights of her presence are making themselves manifest. As part of her plan, a matrimonial bureau (run by Harry Green) brings her into touch with a Hungarian farmer, the middle-aged Aloysius (George Robey), and, out of sheer perverseness, the girl threatens to marry him. In this threat, Ann is aided by Robert's brothers. The romance ends in the only possible way. Ann "bangs into goal" and secures her Robert, whilst Aloysius a bride of more mature charms, whose desire for a rural life is unquestionable.

With an excellent cast, a story that does not flag for an instant, and several musical numbers that are certain to be enjoyed and remembered, "Marry Me" has every possible element that makes for success.

RUSSIA RELENTS

METRO-VICKERS MEN
RELEASED

London, July 2. "The Soviet Embassy has informed the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs that the petitions of Messrs. Thornton and MacDonald, who were sentenced in April last to terms of imprisonment of three years and two years respectively, came before the President of the Executive Committee of the Soviets to-day (Saturday) and that the sentences have been commuted, so that both men are to leave Soviet territory immediately. They are being liberated this evening. "At the same time the Commissar for Trade has cancelled the counter-embargo against British imports." A supplement to the London Gazette, published this evening contains a proclamation made by the King-in-Council to-day revoking the embargo which was declared by a previous proclamation of April 19, made under Section 1 of the Russian Goods Imports Prohibition Act, 1933.

Arrangements will now be made promptly to resume Anglo-Soviet trade negotiations at the point where they were interrupted in consequence of the sentence of the Metropolitan Vickers engineers.

Guests At Embassy. Messrs. Thornton and MacDonald were released on Saturday night at 9 o'clock, Moscow time. They proceeded to the British Embassy, where it had been arranged they should spend the night. They are proceeding to London to-morrow evening and will be accompanied by the British Consul in Moscow as far as the frontier town of Stolnee.

The terms of the King's proclamation are as follows: "Whereas, in pursuance of Section 1 of the Russian Goods Imports Prohibition Act, 1933, we proclaimed and declared by proclamation given on the 19th day of April in the year of our Lord 1933 that importation into the United Kingdom of goods of classes or descriptions therein specified, grown, produced or manufactured in the Union of the Soviet Republic was prohibited, and where, as in virtue of the said section, it is lawful for us by proclamation to revoke or vary any proclamation previously made in pursuance of that section, and whereas we have deemed it expedient that the said proclamation given on the 19th April 1933 should be revoked now, therefore we have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council and in virtue and exercise of the powers aforesaid, and of all other powers enabling us in that behalf to issue this, our Royal proclamation, proclaiming and declaring, and it is hereby proclaimed and declared that the said proclamation of the 19th April, 1933, is hereby revoked. Given at our Council at Buckingham Palace on the first day of July in the year of our Lord 1933 and in the 24th year of our reign."

Agreement Unconditional. The Anglo-Soviet agreement is unconditional. It requires the simultaneous rescinding of the embargo and counter-embargo. The formula used states that the prisoners' sentences were "commuted."

Thornton and MacDonald will probably arrive in England on Wednesday.

It is stated that Anglo-Soviet trade negotiations will be resumed on July 3, at the point at which they were interrupted in consequence of

MA'S WAR PLAN

INSISTS HE WILL FIGHT JAPAN

Shanghai, July 2. That he is now considering new plans for fighting the Japanese, was a statement made to Reuters this morning by General Ma Chanshan, the Nanni River battle hero, who is now visiting Shanghai.

Interviewed, General Ma declared that he was slightly indisposed and would remain here for some time recuperating before going to North China.

Referring to the reorganization of his troops now scattered in North China, General Ma said that no substantial step had yet been taken, although he had sent delegates to North China to report on the number of his troops actually left and their whereabouts.

General Ma added that he had proceeded to Nanchang for the specific purpose of reporting to the Heliungkiang situation to General Chiang Kai-shek. He said he was determined to continue his fight with the Japanese, plans for which are now under consideration.

With regard to the Charhar issue, General Ma expressed his sympathy for Gen. Feng Yu-shiang for his anti-Japanese spirit but added that he was unable to share Gen. Feng's viewpoint if the latter had other motives. Gen. Ma further declared the country would be simply unable to stand another civil war.—Reuters.

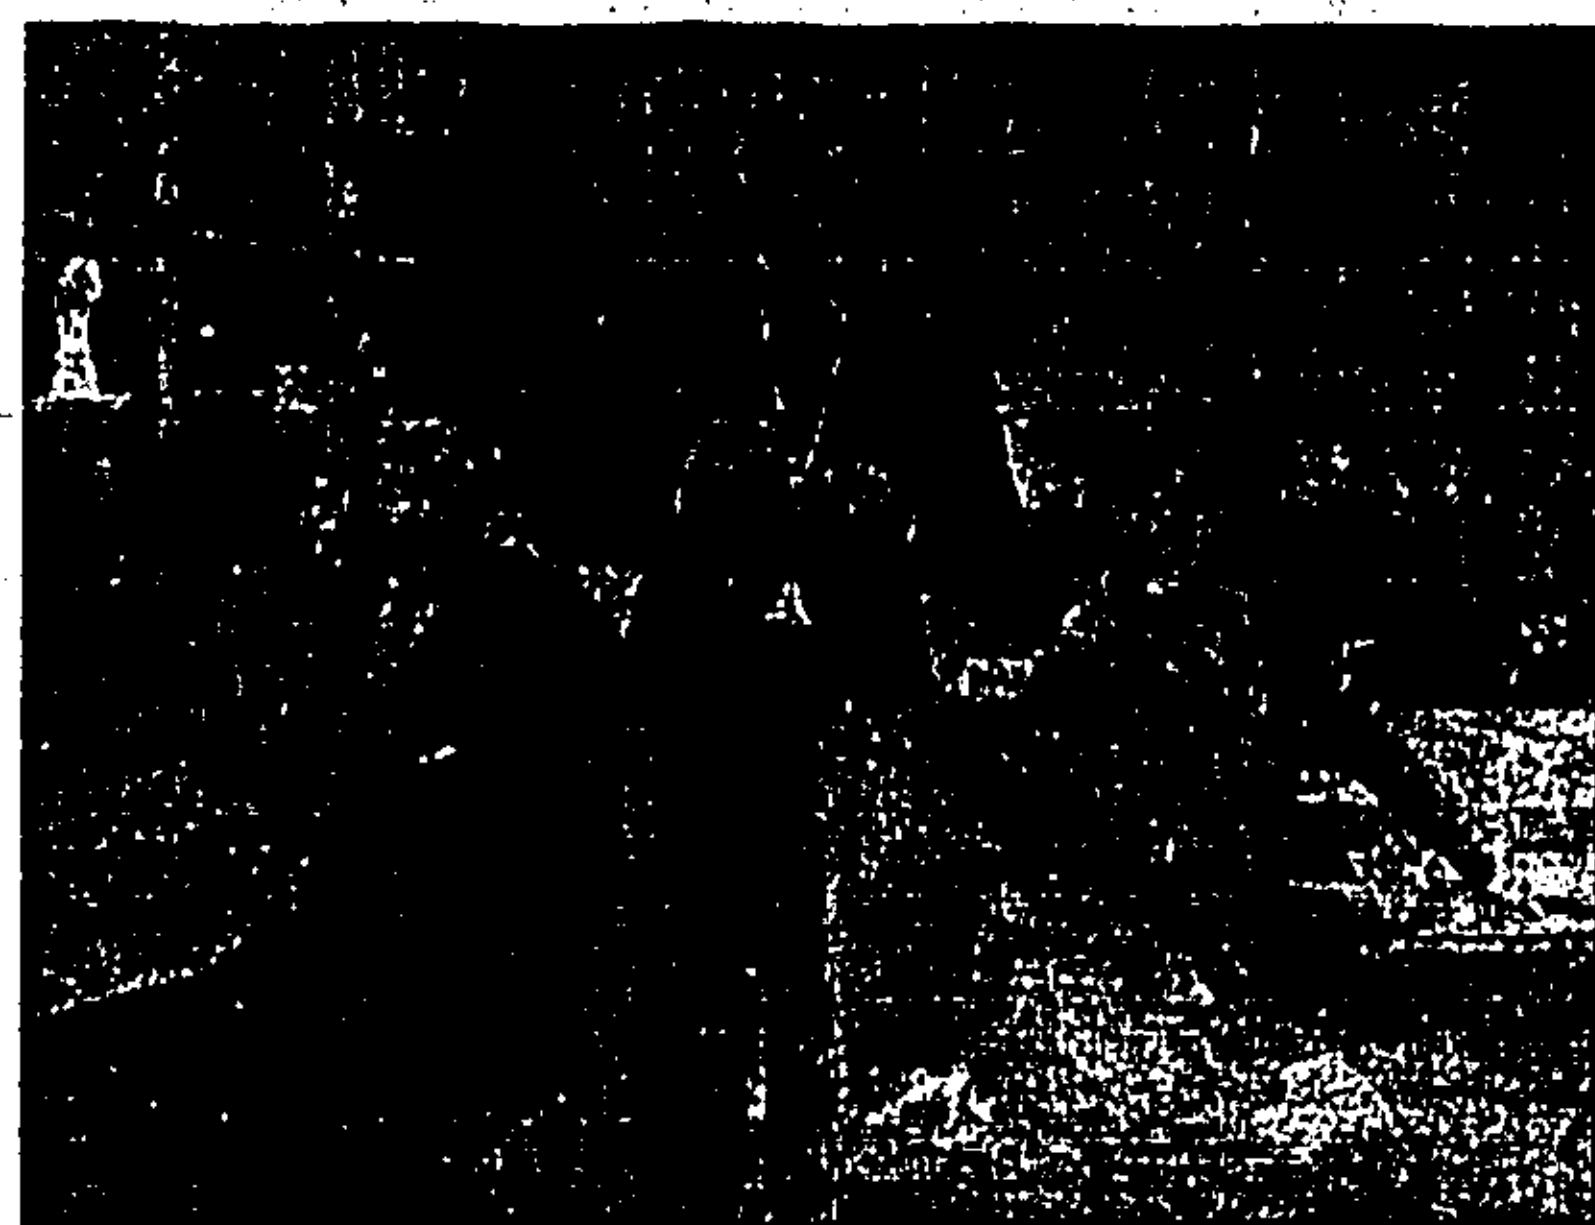

the arrest of the engineers. The agreement is the result of conversations between the Soviet Ambassador in London, M. Maisky, and the British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon.—Reuters and British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

HATS GLISTEN THIS SUMMER

Shiny Straws, Patent Leather, Cellophane Braids
Make Them Veritable Halos!

By Joann Savoy

No sooner have the spring hats bloomed on every head than summer hats appear which make you wish you could change your headpiece immediately.

There are many blacks, many whites, many blues on deck. Brims come with warmer sun. And so do gleaming things. Your hat will be a veritable halo this summer in rough shiny straws, patent leather trimmings, cellophane braids, and all sorts of glamorous and other fragile looking materials.

For the sophisticated woman there is a new little "high hat" made of shiny black cire straw, with a veil that flares down over your right eye and then stands up from the pleated little bonnet. A gleaming rhinestone pin in pointed design, adds sophisticated touch in front.

For that all-white mode for suits and dresses that is coming your way this summer, there is a white organdie hat, with double-cuffed gloves to match, made of the organdie. Black cire ribbon, laces up the bonnet and ties the wrists of the cuffs. In white pique, black patent leather serves these purposes.

This little ensemble has a youthfulness about it that is irresistible. Moreover, it carries with it a certain freshness that will make everybody looking at you feel cool on the hottest day.

There's something feminine and charming about the combinations of pink and blue that women will wear this summer.

One hat of this new Frenchy duet of tones is a tea-rose pink straw with just the right shade of blue organza trimming it. The blue organza makes an over-brim, a drooping, lifting brim it is too, and then the blue ribbon is pleated almost to cover the crown. It has that tailored look that is seldom found in a dainty dress hat—the kind women look for in vain usually.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Billy broke a glass on the bathroom floor. Instantly his mother rushed for a dust pan and brush. She not only got up all the pieces but she went over the floor with a damp cloth afterward so that no microscope bit could work into the soles of little feet and cause trouble.

Another glass had a chip out of the edge. Fearful lest one of the children cut a lip on it she threw it out.

A box-spring couch in the nursery suddenly threw out a loose wire that snared the unwary as they passed. She did not allow her husband to eat his dinner until he had procured a file and detached the inch of peril from its place.

All over the house she was ever on the alert for danger.

Wounds Cause Trouble.

And she was right because, as we know, big troubles can result from little wounds and anything that can cut or scratch is better removed at once.

Now there is, at Billy's house, a nice back yard, part of it lawn, part of it shrubbery and part flower beds. There is also a small service yard next the garage where garbage-can and rubbish-barrel hide their ignominy behind a vine-covered lattice.

In the play part of the yard there is a swing and a swinging bar. The lawn is tramped pretty flat here. The children are supposed to stay away from flower beds, shrubbery, and service yard.

"Accidents Will Happen"

One very warm day Billy and his sister were allowed to go in their bare feet.

Billy's ball went into a flower bed just beginning to show green. He went tip-toe after it and cut a long gash on a piece of white china that had not been picked up when the man spaded it.

A few days later they were playing "I-spy" and Bunny, his sister, found a hiding hole behind the rubbish-barrel. She wasn't supposed to be there but she was. She just forgot. She cut her foot on a piece of ink bottle.

Safety First! Clean Up

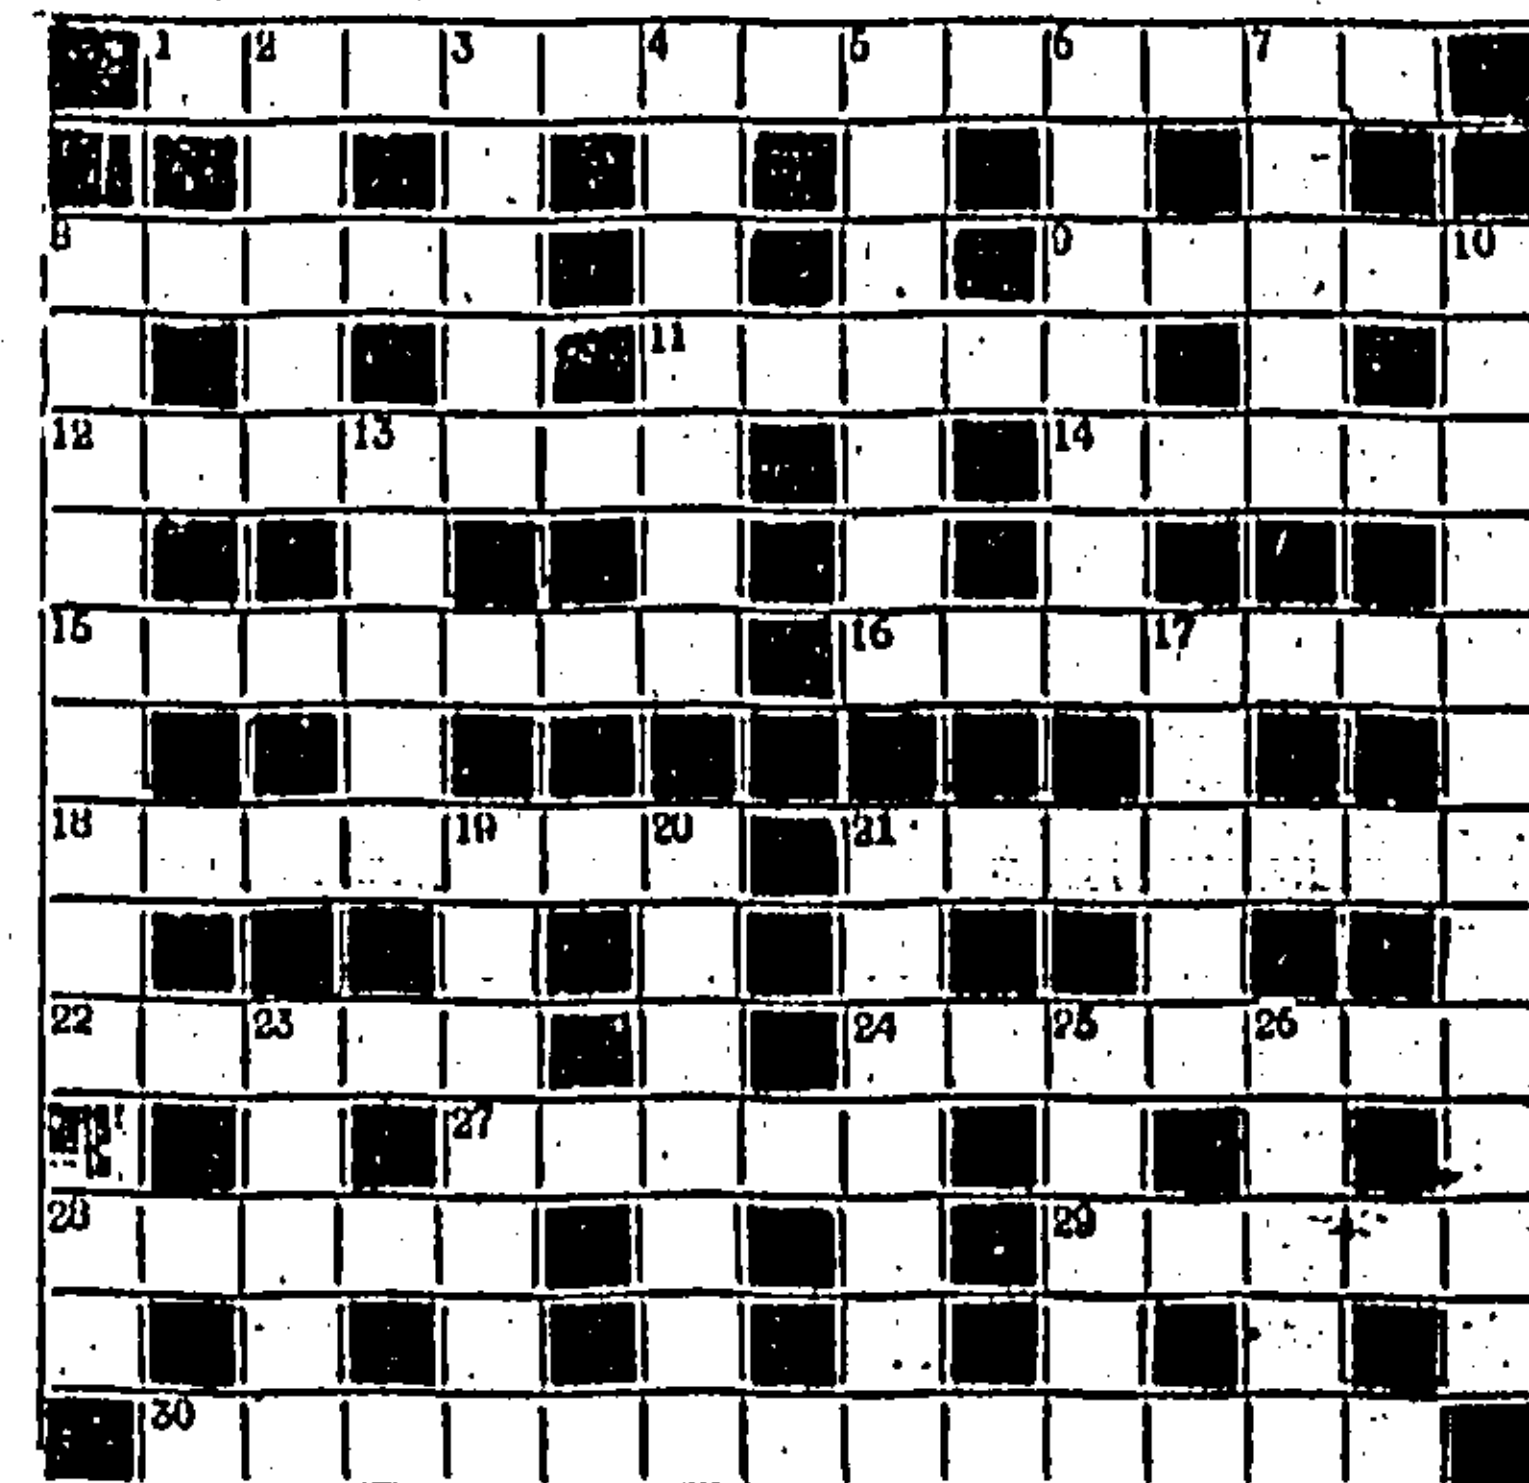

Now these two little feet healed up all right in a day or two, but another big boy, a neighbour, got a nail through his shoe when he was trying to get snowballs off the big bush next door. This proved to be serious. Blood poisoning set in.

"I heard Billy's mother and father talking about it. Mr. Smith was berating Mrs. Smith for not seeing that the yard was kept as safe as the house. And she in turn told him it was his job. 'The children have orders to keep where it's safe,' she said. 'I do watch their playground.'"

He scoffed at this. "Orders! Humph! Kids are hopping all over the place. Get Tony to-morrow to go over the whole yard and the one next door too. Tell him not to leave even a rusty pin."

We cannot all have Tonies to pick up for us, but we do have hands. Yards should be kept as safe as houses.

SIR MILES LAMPSON.

APPOINTMENT TO TURKEY AGAIN RUMOURED

Istanbul, July 1.
There is a strong impression in Consular quarters here, that Sir Miles Lampson, British Minister to China will shortly succeed Sir George Clerk as British Ambassador to Turkey.

Sir George Clerk was appointed British Ambassador to Brussels six weeks ago.

The British Foreign Office interviewed by Reuter to-day, declined to make any statement.

LEADS BOSNIA GANG OF ROBBERS

Belgrade.
A gang of thieves who terrorised the whole of the Teslitch district of Bosnia was recently rounded up by the Banja Luka police. To their surprise it was found that the leader of the gang was Hafiza Hasanitch, a thirty-year-old woman!

Hafiza, who was the most capable and active member of the band, used to spy out the land and enter, by various excuses, the harem quarters of rich Moslem houses. When she had discovered an easy way of entrance and the place where the jewels of the women were kept, she would collect her band, change into men's attire, and lead them to the spoils.

When caught, Hafiza was wearing a suit of rough male clothes, but underneath these she had the finest of silk underwear, and a $300 necklace of pearls, taken from the house of a wealthy Moslem.

Hafiza has now been sentenced to six months' imprisonment.—Reuter.

WORLD'S LARGEST LIBRARY

5,000,000 BOOKS

UNIQUE RECORD FOR MOSCOW

Moscow. The Lenin public library here is now the largest library in the world. It contains, according to an official statement, over 5,000,000 volumes. Because of the increased number of books in the Lenin library two new blocks are being erected beside the old building and will be ready for use this summer. They are calculated to hold several million books and will also contain large reading rooms. The number of visitors to the library in 1932 is given as 600,000. The record number for one day was 2,000. A special newspaper and magazine room is to be opened in the library soon. Besides Soviet publications, the library subscribes to 1,300 foreign magazines. The library is now engaged in arranging for the publication of hitherto unpublished Russian classics and of diaries written by public men of the 19th Century. A book of Russian miniatures of the 16th Century is also being published which will contain 100 colour plates.

BRITISH MUSEUM SIXTH.

The British Museum ranks sixth in size among the world's largest libraries, according to 1931 figures, compiled in the Library of Congress, Washington. The number of books contained in the large libraries are given as: Public Library of Leningrad 4,832,948; Library of Congress, Washington 4,477,431; Bibliotheque Nationale, Paris 4,000,000; New York Public Library 3,476,971; British Museum 3,200,000; Berlin 2,287,821; Bodleian Library 1,250,000.—Reuter.

LONDON TRAGEDY RECALLED

MARRIAGE, DIVORCE & DEATH IN AN HOUR

COURT BEAUTY PASSES

Belgrade. The death at Nice of Olga Korzakova, a 68 year old Russian refugee, who once lived in London, recalls the amazing tragedy of her youth, which resulted in a young officer being married, divorced and shot within one hour. Olga Korzakova lived in Moscow when she was sixteen. She was the most striking beauty at the Russian Court, where she was taken by her father, who was one of the Tsar's closest friends. Many men clamoured for her hand and among them were officers of all ranks of the Royal Guard. Among these was a young Captain Rozovski. One night, when Rozovski and his friends were carousing, they heard by chance that Olga's father had been suddenly called away from home. Rozovski conceived a bold plan to win the girl. He went to her house, claimed to have brought a message from her father, saw Olga and persuaded her to accompany him to his apartment. Once there she was forced to join in their feast and stay the night. On her father's return she told him what had happened. He rushed at once to the Tsar and informed him. The Tsar ordered a special parade of officers, during which Olga picked out Rozovski as the culprit. The Tsar immediately sent for a priest and ordered him to marry Captain Rozovski to Olga Korzakova. When the ceremony was completed, he ordered him to divorce them immediately. This ceremony was also speedily completed. Then Rozovski's badges of rank were torn from him, he was marched away under escort, and within an hour of being married he was shot.

The dead officer left a huge fortune, which went to his bride of one hour. But she could never forget the tragedy of her wedding. She travelled extensively, lived long in London, Paris and Rome. She died recently in Nice. The news of her death was carried in a newspaper article. The article was headed "The Russian Refugee" and described her tragic history, which was described in a newspaper article.

RUSSIA RELENTS

METRO-VICKERS MEN RELEASED

London, July 2. "The Soviet Embassy has informed the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs that the petitions of Messrs. Thornton and MacDonald, who were sentenced in April last to terms of imprisonment of three years and two years respectively, came before the President of the Executive Committee of the Soviets to-day (Saturday) and that the sentences have been commuted, so that both men are to leave Soviet territory immediately. They are being liberated this evening. "At the same time the Commissar for Trade has cancelled the counter-embargo against British imports." A supplement to London Gazette, published this evening contains a proclamation made by the King-in-Council to-day revoking the embargo which was declared by a previous proclamation of April 19, made under Section 1 of Russian Goods Imports Prohibition Act, 1933. Arrangements will now be made promptly to resume Anglo-Soviet trade negotiations at the point where they were interrupted in consequence of the sentence of the Metropolitan Vickers engineers.

Guests At Embassy.

Messrs. Thornton and MacDonald were released on Saturday night at 9 o'clock, Moscow time. They proceeded to the British Embassy, where it had been arranged they should spend the night. They are proceeding to London to-morrow evening and will be accompanied by the British Consul in Moscow as far as the frontier town of Stolpce.

The terms of the King's proclamation are as follows: "Whereas, in pursuance of Section 1 of the Russian Goods Imports Prohibition Act, 1933, we proclaimed and declared by proclamation given on the 19th day of April in the year of our Lord 1933 that importation into the United Kingdom of goods of classes or descriptions therein specified, grown, produced or manufactured in the Union of the Soviet Republic was prohibited, and whereas, as in virtue of the said section, it is lawful for us by proclamation to revoke or vary any proclamation previously made in pursuance of that section, and whereas we have deemed it expedient that the said proclamation given on the 19th April 1933 should be revoked now, therefore we have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council and in virtue and exercise of the powers aforesaid, and of all other powers enabling us in that behalf to issue this, our Royal Proclamation, proclaiming and declaring, and it is hereby proclaimed and declared that the said proclamation of the 19th April, 1933, is hereby revoked. Given at our Council at Buckingham Palace on the first day of July in the year of our Lord 1933 and in the 24th year of our reign."

Agreement Unconditional.

The Anglo-Soviet agreement is unconditional. It requires the simultaneous rescinding of the embargo and counter-embargo. The formula used states that the prisoners' sentences were "commuted." Thornton and MacDonald will probably arrive in England on Wednesday.

It is stated that Anglo-Soviet trade negotiations will be resumed on July 3, at the point at which they were interrupted in consequence of the arrest of the engineers.

The agreement is the result of conversations between the Soviet Ambassador in London, M. Maisky, and the British Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon.—Reuter and British Wireless.

MA'S WAR PLAN

INSISTS HE WILL FIGHT JAPAN

Shanghai, July 2. That he is now considering new plans for fighting the Japanese, was a statement made to Reuter this morning by General Ma Chanshan, the Nomi River Battle hero, who is now visiting Shanghai. Interviewed, General Ma declared that he was slightly indisposed and would remain here for some time recuperating before going to North China.

Referring to the reorganisation of his troops now scattered in North China, General Ma said that no substantial step had yet been taken, although he had sent delegates to North China to report on the number of his troops actually left and their whereabouts.

General Ma added that he had proceeded to Nanchang for the specific purpose of reporting the Heilungkiang situation to General Chiang Kai-shek. He said he was determined to continue his fight with the Japanese, plans for which are now under consideration.

With regard to the Chahar issue, General Ma expressed his sympathy for Gen. Fong Yu-hsiang for his anti-Japanese spirit but added that he was unable to share Gen. Fong's viewpoint if the latter had been in the country would be simply unable to stand another civil war.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT REJECTS STABILISATION

Dollar Not Yet Low Enough in American View

London, July 2. President Roosevelt has rejected the joint proposals for the stabilisation of currencies in their present form. The American Secretary of State, Mr. Cordell Hull, will make a statement on Monday, elaborating American policy, as it applies to the subject.—Reuter.

Interpretations.

New York, July 2. President Roosevelt's rejection of the currency formula has been variously construed by special correspondents in Washington as direct defiance of France or as an attempt to delay the final decision for a few days, when the dollar will be low enough for private control measures.

The President's statement that currency control is a banking, rather than a Government proposition, offers no promise of stabilisation unless the Federal Reserve Bank is protected against losses by the United States Treasury.

President Roosevelt believes that permanent stabilisation will not be in sight until the gold countries have shown that they can remain on the gold standard.

There is also reason to believe that the vagueness of the gold resolution militated against its acceptance.

Mr. Cordell Hull's statement on Monday is likely to prove decisive either way.—Reuter.

Important Conference.

New York, July 1. An important conference was held to-day at the home of Mr. W. H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury. It was attended by Mr. D. G. Acheson (Under Secretary), Messrs. Baruch and Burgess (Federal Reserve Bank) and Mr. Fred I. Kent, Foreign Exchange Dictator.

A belief prevails that a plan has been evolved to moderate, temporarily, the fluctuations in currencies, not by stabilisation but through the concerted action of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and foreign central banks. One official stated that it is "not absolutely necessary" to provide a special fund to prevent further migration of currencies.—Reuter.

Dollar Not Low Enough.

New York, July 1. The Times correspondent in New York sums up President Roosevelt's views as follows: "That there have been no gyrations of the dollar. That the dollar has not yet declined enough to afford a fair stabilisation value. That the United States stake in the World Economic Conference will be sorely injured by pegging the dollar at the present time."

American Stocks.

New York, July 2. Apparently encouraged by reports that President Roosevelt does not consider the exchange value of the dollar low enough, the stock market rushed up one to three points. There was heavy trading as the dollar slumped, despite reports of an equalisation agreement by the Central banks.

Meanwhile, "the strange spectacle of an obviously inflationary boom on faith alone" is the subject of comment in Business Week, which points out that there has been no real inflation yet by the Government. Currency in circulation has declined by $1,800,000,000 since March. Bank credits to industrial concerns have not expanded and Federal Reserve Banks are not using their emergency powers to pump Government credit into the banks.—Reuter.

French Attitude

London, July 1. Be Roosevelt's reply what it may, the French Government has made its own standpoint clear at a Council of Ministers this morning. Paris messages state that the Council considered a report from M. Bonnet, leader of the French delegation, after which it reaffirmed its attitude that nothing can be achieved in the economic sphere at the Conference without currency stabilisation.

The French papers are not unsympathetic towards Britain and recognise that she is "between the devil and the deep sea" over the currency crisis.—Reuter.

Not To Walk Out.

London, July 2. It is stated in French World Economic Conference circles that France will not walk out of the Conference, even if President Roosevelt finally turns down any form of joint declaration, but confidence in the possibility of the Conference's achieving substantial results will be completely destroyed. The French feel that the future of the Conference rests with Britain, who, it is felt, if Mr. Roosevelt declines to concur with the common declaration, should herself more closely with the Continental gold bloc.—Reuter.

DEATH OF COUNTESS OF DESART

STRONG ANTI-SUFFRAGE VIEWS.

London, July 1. The death is announced of the Countess of Desart, of Aut Even, Talbots Inch, Kilkenny, Senator of the Irish Free State, at the age of 76.—Our Own Correspondent.

The Countess was born in London in September 1857, and was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. H. L. Blachoffhelm, of Bute House, South Audley Street, and Clarissa Biedermann. In 1881 she married the 4th Earl of Desart, who died in 1898. She carried out the duties of a well educated, intelligent woman conscientiously, and held very strong anti-suffrage views, which found expression in the active part she took in England in combating the agitation for Woman Suffrage. She resumed her life in Ireland, which had been interrupted in the early years of her widowhood, in 1912, and was nominated for the Senate of the Irish Free State by President Cosgrave in December 1922.

She has written many articles for the leading magazines, and included in her publications are "A Guide to Secretaries, Public and Private," and "Style and Title," the latter in collaboration with Constance Hooper.

The Countess was a keen sports-woman and was member of the Ladies' Automobile Club, the Royal Irish Automobile Club, Dublin, and the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

SIR. C. W. STARMER.

Well-known Newspaper Magnate And Publisher.

London, June 1. The death is announced at the age of 63 of Sir Charles Walter Starmar, of Danby Lodge, Darlington, the newspaper magnate, who is managing director of the Birmingham Gazette Limited, the North of England Newspaper Co., the Bradford and District Newspaper Co., and the Nottingham Journal Limited.—Our Own Correspondent.

At the age of 29, Sir Charles joined the staff of the Northern Echo and in 1908 was made manager. Later he took over the control of the Sheffield Independent, the Birmingham Gazette and other papers, and at the time of his death published in all 30 provincial daily and weekly papers.

In 1903 he was elected a member of the Darlington Town Council and was Mayor of Darlington in 1907-08. In 1915 he was made an alderman.

He was created a knight in 1917, and was Liberal M.P. for the Cleveland Division North Riding Yorkshire, 1923-24.

Sir Charles was married first in 1893, his wife being the daughter of the late Captain Cornforth, who died in 1923. There was one daughter by his first wife. In 1929 he married again, this time the daughter of the late Dean of Norwich, the Rev. J. W. Willink.

"A PURE UNDILUTED JOY"

"The Vauxhall Cadet is a powerful, roomy and comfortable car and it possesses two obvious advantages. One, a silent second, must appeal alike to expert and novice. The other, the Synchro-Mesh gear changing is so novices, like myself, a pure undiluted joy."

So writes this Synchro-Mesh enthusiast. Try it for yourself—you cannot make a bad "change". Smooth acceleration, decisive braking, steering that is effortless and ample power—all these you will find in the Vauxhall Cadet.

You will use less petrol than you'd expect. Modern lines, riding comfort, luxurious coachwork, tasteful colour schemes, headlights and radiator slates in gleaming chromium, mark the Cadet as being a distinctly different car.

Prices from £295. Arrange for a trial run.

C.E.R. DISPUTE

The official parleys between Russia and Manchukuo with the object of negotiating the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway are proceeding in an atmosphere of the closest secrecy. Practically nothing of an authoritative nature has been disclosed regarding the trend of the discussions since the conference opened at Tokyo last Monday, a fact which seems to suggest that there is more than mere surmise in the suggestion that political issues are forming an important feature. Ostensibly Japan is holding aloof, allowing Manchukuo and the Soviet to settle "their dispute" between themselves. Count Uchida opened the conference by expressing the earnest desire of the Japanese Government for the success of the deliberations, and after M. Yureneff, the chief Russian delegate, and General Ting Hsih-yuan, the Manchukuo Minister, had responded politely, the Japanese attending the ceremony retired. It was also given out that Japan wanted to settle the question as a purely commercial deal. There is rumour, however, that important political questions are on the agenda. One Japanese source declares that among the points receiving consideration are (1) the question of a non-aggression pact between the U.S.S.R. and Japan (2) the question of the abandonment of North Saghalien by Soviet Russia and (3) the question of fishing rights in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Shigemitsu is believed to be undertaking the negotiation for Japan. The suggestion is that Japan is seeking to obtain every possible gain from the obvious desire of Russia to steer clear of a disastrous upheaval in the Far East. If such is the case, the Russian delegates will require all their stock of patience.

Japan's political and military aspirations are too completely dove-tailed in the programme alleged to have been submitted for discussion to permit anything but acute suspicion. At the same time, it is doubtful whether the Soviet representatives have arrived in Tokyo armed with the necessary authority to discuss these issues, which have been a perennial source of friction between Russia and Japan. Between conflicting reports, it is difficult to choose that which comes nearest to the truth, but in view of the great importance attached by Japan to the purchase by Manchukuo of the Chinese Eastern Railway, implying as the transaction would, Russian recognition of the puppet State, the likelihood of the broaching of such controversial questions would seem to be remote. Japanese diplomacy is usually far more subtle than such a procedure would denote.

The World's Biggest City

London is a geographical expression, variously defined; but as a unit of population clustering in scores of suburbs and dormitory towns round its metropolitan centre it is still the biggest city in the world, and it has lately been growing at an unmanageable rate. Thus regarded, "Greater London," as it is called, has an area of 700 square miles, and includes about one-quarter of the inhabitants of England. In the ten years between 1921 and 1931 the population of its outer area increased by more than 1,000,000, and it has been continuously spreading since then. It has been throwing out ungainly tentacles over the once rural areas that surrounded it, and in spite of the riot of new building that has gone on continuously since the war, there is still overcrowding at the centre. This vast problem has been under the systematic consideration of a body known as the Greater London Regional Planning Committee. How easy it is for un-directed growth to spoil a huge area may be judged by the fact that of the 700 square miles affected only 400 are actually occupied as building sites. The houses are scattered, here in lumps of population, there in ribbon development along the roads. But there is much that may yet be done by planning new building within the area, and strictly controlling new development on the fringe. The plan envisages a "green girdle" as near to the completely urbanized area of London as possible, for playing fields and pleasure spaces, and the definition of the areas outside the girdle, some for building according to plan, some for public spaces. A particularly important part of the scheme takes account of the new industries which tend more and more to collect in the neighbourhood of London. These, it is pointed out, should be planned as parts of complete units with residential areas and trading centres suitably combined. Thus the scheme indicates the grouping of subsidiary centres of population, and the simultaneous planning of housing and traffic facilities. Much will depend on the good will and initiative of local authorities. It is not enough to have a good plan. The next, and usually more difficult thing is to get it carried out.

A VISIT TO INFERNO

By H. R. WELLS

CHAPTER I. THE HOLIDAY.

There was a scholar living in Cheung Chau in the Fukien Province who had gained the degree of Doctor of Literature. His name was Ting Laan-kat, and he also had the name Mung Ling, or the "dream spirit".

When he was still a young student, twenty-four years of age, it happened that on the ninth day of the ninth Moon, a day much observed among the Chinese as a great festival, he took the opportunity to ascend a mountain according to custom. He took with him a bottle of wine for refreshment, and wandered over the hills admiring the scenery.

He was by himself and heard nothing but the movements of the leaves on the pine trees and the other trees of the wood, and the whispering sound of the falling leaves.

He sat down on the top of the hill and poured himself out a few cups of wine which he drank. Suddenly a great gust of wind whirled by, blowing the leaves about on the ground until almost as if they had their own ideas and sense.

Laan Kat said, "This wind is very delightful and yet it is strange. Surely it cannot be a spirit or demon passing by?" But in case there might be such a thing he at once poured out three cups of wine as a libation.

When the wine reached the ground, the wind and the leaves turned about and passed on.

CHAPTER II. THE JOURNEY TO HADES.

In a moment Laan Kat became as if he were drunk and he slept, and then he appeared to observe a man dressed in a uniform of a bluish grey colour who came before him and bowed, saying, "Mr. Ting, you really are a good man. Thank you very much for your gift of wine."

Laan Kat replied, "Honoured Sir, who are you? Why do you speak thus?"

Bluecoat said, "I am not a man, I am a messenger, a sort of police officer or runner from the nether world. I was on my way to a certain city with a despatch to the god of the city, and I was just passing this place."

"When I was a man in the world of men I had a great craving for wine, and to-day, when I suddenly smelt the fragrance of wine, I could not control my feelings, so I stayed near here and thanks to your great generosity, my vicious throat has been irrigated and melted away. How can I repay such an expression of goodwill?"

Laan Kat raised his hands to salute the man, and said, "Honoured Sir, you are a responsible officer of the other world, and know all about the conditions of that world. I have heard that there are eighteen grades or stages in Hades or Hell but I do not know the truth about these stages. Have you always wanted to go and examine the place for yourself, but there is no road by which one may go, and everything about that world is so mysterious. Could you possibly take me to walk about there and see the conditions?"

Bluecoat said, "That is as easy as picking up beans. In fact easier, because in picking up beans one has to stoop down to pick them up. Laan Kat said, 'If you take me there you must bring me back again.' Bluecoat said, 'That is a matter of course. Is it likely that I would take you away to death?'"

So they went along together, and after a time they reached a place where it grew darker, and they saw a great many people coming and going, and soon they came to a large palace and stopped in front of the door.

Bluecoat said, "You wait here while I go and give my report to the officials. After I have done that I will take you for a walk to investigate the conditions."

"But when I go in, if it should happen that there is much business to be attended to, and I cannot come out soon, you need not worry. I shall certainly be able to manage it."

He then went inside the palace, and Laan Kat waited outside. He saw a pair of scrolls on a large iron plate on which there were ten large characters in words in two antithetical sentences of five words each. One side read, "Of all evils fornication or adultery is the chief," and on the other "Of all good deeds the principal one is filial piety."

He also saw a great many people passing along. Some were sitting in sedan chairs, some rode on horseback, some were in carriages, some were in cages and some free, others were in chains. Some came sauntering along swaying their arms and limbs in an easy style, others again came with heads downcast as if in the depths of despondency.

He observed that some who came out of the palace seemed to be very pleased, as pleased as heaven and earth. Some howled and wept bitterly, some went away wearing long official robes, some had ragged coats and trousers.

Some were clad in cow's hide or skins of horses, and some in skins of dogs and sheep. Everything that was to be seen in the world was also to be seen in appearance in the nether world. One crowd was going, and another multitude was coming.

The mountain of knives, the tree of swords, the sea of bitterness and the lake of blood could be seen in the distance, yet they appeared to be close to the eye.

CHAPTER III. THE ENTRANCE.

After about half an hour, Bluecoat came out and said, "I know that you have been kept waiting for me a long time. I have been delayed on account of various matters of business."

Ting Laan-kat said, "Well, well, there really is a nether world related to the world of men. I have read about this in books for a very long time, but I have been very sceptical about it. This was very wrong of me."

Bluecoat replied, "Well, people are in the world for less than a hundred years. Those who do good are rewarded by blessing but the amount of their happiness and peace is limited."

Those who do evil meet with calamity, but their bitterness and sorrow is also limited. Therefore, the Creator has ordered that those who are really good should be rewarded with great blessings and dwell in Heaven for thousands of years and even for ever and ever."

"For instance there were Man Cheung and Kwan Tai, the gods of literature and war, who were beings promoted to godhead. Do you not agree that they ought to be in heaven?"

"Those on the other hand who are very bad have great trouble and sorrow and are in Hell for thousands of years, in fact for eternity, such people as Tao Tso and Tsun Wal, who were regarded as traitors. Do you not agree that they ought to be in Hell?"

"There are many others besides these. Some are from the mountains of the genii and from the Kingdom of Buddha. They have left the world but they have enjoyment and ease. Of course, you know this. Do you think this kind of gladness and joy comes from doing good or from following the path of sin?"

"In the world there is a class of very good people, and also some are very bad. Those who are very good are ordained to enjoy the greater happiness, and so you may readily understand that the very bad people are condemned to the greatest trouble and bitterness and grief."

"As to those who are half good and half evil, there must also be a method of dealing with them, and trying their cases, and seeing that they receive their due reward."

"Scholars use their own judgment as to the ancient records of the genii and Buddhas. How did it come to pass that Kan Lo-kung was the per-

The Very Idea!

WE HAD A MASSAGE.

By Eddie Kelly, Maxfactored

AS we stood before the mirror this morning, thoughtfully stroking our aquiline features, we bethought that our sylph-like figure was not looking its best.

Those angular activities and decorative activities that denote the real Kelly were slipping into a c or p or a t i o n.

Either a constitutional or a massage was indicated. As our chit account has been stopped at the hotel, there was only one thing for it.

Editor's note: You could have taken up sport.

Sporting Editor's note: If you're asking for my resignation.

Editor's note: No, no, but you could have done exercises like these film stars do.

Editor's note: No, no, but perhaps even dancing.....?

Editor's note: We refuse to foot-note these innuendoes. We maintain a SCORNFUL AND DIGNIFIED SILENCE (partly because we cannot make ourselves heard and partly because we can't think of anything to say.)

Getting on with the story, before we were so rudely interrupted.

We betook ourselves to the masseur, and asked for an estimate. We didn't haggle about the price, so after the little difference of opinion regarding cash payment had been settled, we undressed.

We have only a dim recollection of what passed as we lay in the altogether, having our limbs kneaded and oiled, and our chassis tapped and lubricated like a scruffy Ford.

Do we remember the ceiling as we gazed appealingly into its pure white face, and the table as we pressed our nose into its unyielding surface? All else was blank.

No one will ever know the agony we bravely bore as he waved our left leg beyond our reach, and twisted our other frail understanding into a passable imitation of the Swastika.

Nor will anyone ever plumb the depths of our passion as he tied our arms into a reef knot, knelt into the smelt of our back, and, while he intimately stroked our corpuses, disoiled on the dispersion of incomplete metabolisms by the physiological activity induced by Swedish massage.

Accusing us, Edward Kelly, of being an incomplete metabolizer! We admit we don't know what it is, but we're sure that we're not it, whatever it is, and anyway, if we were it, which we strongly deny, although we are not sure what it is, we would not be it incomplete, anyway.

Above is an interval where we have attended the Hongkong Hotel for a restorative and antidote against the ill-treatment we had from that ghastly fellow

This is another interval in which we had another antidote against the brutal attack of that fellow

Meanwhile—yes, this is an interval when we have had another antidote against that beastly fellow. Meanwhile we have felt so strongly about it that we have decided to consult our solicitors.

The Cinema Critic has just told us what it is, so there will be nothing between the intervals now.

son appointed to mark and adjudicate on the essay, and Tong Chung-kwai was a learned doctor in Nam Shan. Yet they were full of doubts and did not believe, and said that all things were foolish and superstitious if they could not be seen with their own eyes."

Ting Laan-kat replied, "That is absolutely true."

Bluecoat continued, "If you only reckon that what you see is true, and what you do not see is false, then the phoenix and unicorn must be false and fabulous animals, and such people as Fuk Hoi and Pan Koo are false and only fabulous men."

Ting Laan-kat said, "But in such cases there are books of proof."

Bluecoat replied, "Yes, there are books, but are there not also books on the subject of Hell?"

Ting Laan-kat said, "Well, I have heard that there are books on Hell, but I have not seen them."

Bluecoat said, "I have seen them, and I can tell you that they are not books of proof, but books of lies."

WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

FATE HANGING IN BALANCEEUROPEAN GOLD BLOC NOT PLEASED

WALK-OUT DANGER

London, July 3. Although no serious developments are to be expected until Mr. Cordell Hull has made the promised explanation of America's currency attitude, President Roosevelt's rejection of the gold resolution has had a depressing effect on the World Economic Conference.

The Continental delegates are wondering whether Mr. Roosevelt is playing for time, to permit the dollar to fall further, or whether he is serious in his suggestion that all countries should abandon the gold standard.

In some quarters it is felt that he has both objects in view. It is notable that his main objections to the formula presented concern the statement that it is desirable for countries at present on the gold standard to maintain their position and the further statement that non-gold countries should return to gold as soon as possible.

The immediate danger is the refusal of the Continental gold bloc to participate in further discussions at the Conference.

If a start was made, this prospect would have to be seriously contemplated. It is felt, however, that no member of the gold bloc will be willing to shoulder the responsibility for giving the lead to a walk-out of the Conference, although it is recognised that the feeling in Continental gold circles is by no means happy.

The French have definitely denied any intention of moving the adjournment of the Conference and possibly all other advocates of the gold standard will hold back from such a definite step even in the event of Mr. Cordell Hull's statement to-day bringing no concrete new suggestions.

AMERICANS NOT HOPEFUL

As a number of Americans themselves appear to have little hope of much from Mr. Hull at the moment, it seems that the most likely course will be that a way will be sought by the gold countries for dissociating themselves from the conference without causing a definite and obvious break.

This may possibly be achieved by withdrawing the chief financial delegates.

In any case, unless the situation is cleared up by this evening or Tuesday, some of the gold countries are to be expected to make a definite move.

FATE IN BALANCE.

Later. There seems no doubt that the fate of the World Economic Conference hangs upon Mr. Cordell Hull's statement to-day, while forecasts from New York indicate that the statement will leave matters very much as they were before the Conference.

There is some hope in London that he will give some indication of a plan by the United States for temporarily steadying the dollar in the foreign exchange markets through the Federal Reserve Banks and foreign central banks.

DOWNING STREET ACTIVE.

Yesterday was exceedingly busy in Downing Street. Mr. Hull, after a long conference with Professor Raymond Moley, had a forty-minute conversation with Mr. Ramsay MacDonald in the afternoon and subsequently, Mr. Neville Chamberlain and a number of Treasury officials at 6 p.m. met the representatives of the gold countries and engaged in a conference which lasted for fifty minutes.—Reuter.

BAG SNATCHER
SUDDEN ATTACK ON A LADY

Banished in March this year, a man named Ng Cheung was brought before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on two charges of snatching a handbag from a Chinese lady at the junction of Nathan Road and Jordan Road on Saturday morning and with returning from banishment.

It was stated that the lady was shortening her face from the rain with her handbag when defendant walked up from behind and snatched it away. She raised the alarm and a chase ensued.

Sentence of one year's hard labour was passed.

DEATH OF YORKSHIRE
PAINTER

MR. J. WALTER WEST

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 1. Mr. J. Walter West, the well known Yorkshire painter, has died. Educated at Bootham School, York, and later passing through the Royal Academy School, London, Mr. West won the first silver medal of the Royal Academy for drawing the head from life. The picture was purchased by the Chantry Trustees for the Tate Gallery in 1913.

Later becoming a member of the Society of Mural Decorators and Painters in Tempera, the deceased had works accepted for the permanent collections of Birmingham, Liverpool, Hull, Preston, Reading, Birkenhead and Wanganui, New Zealand. He was a painter in oil, water colour and tempera, as well as designer of book-plates and posters, a lithographer and illuminator.

Mr. West was also responsible for Underground Railway posters.

SATISFYING THE LAWMAGISTRATE AMENDS
WRONG CHARGE

"Why is this charge under the Public Health and Buildings Ordinance?" queried Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning when a Chinese woman was charged with dumping a bucket of ash in Pokfulam Road.

Inspector Hourihan—it should not have been so. The Magistrate—it should not have been under the Summary Offences. It is not an infringement on Crown land. I will amend the charge.

Defendant was fined $4.

MENDICANT ON CRUTCHESSENT TO PRISON FOR A WEEK

Locked up since Saturday night for begging outside the King's Theatre, a mendicant was allowed to go with a caution by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning.

Another mendicant who begged in the grounds of St. John's Cathedral, and who had a previous conviction was fined $5 or seven days. It was stated that Inspector Vincent went there on information that some of the beggars were returned banished. While investigating he arrested the defendant.

Defendant, who stood with the assistance of a crutch, said he had his leg amputated ten years ago.

The remaining twenty-three planes of the Italian air Armada left Amsterdam at 7.14 a.m. and arrived at Londonderry, Ireland, at 12.20 p.m. without any further untoward incidents.—Reuter.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

TRUST NOT IN HIM THAT SEEMS A SAINT.—Fuller.

A reward of $2,000 is offered for the arrest of a thief from the F. & O. Banking Corporation.

Admitting having snatched three ten cents pieces from a hawker's stall in West Point a Chinese was sent to prison for six weeks by Mr. Schofield this morning. The money was recovered.

For placing 100 pounds of sugar on board the Chakung without the permission of the master or the agents of the vessel, Ng Man was fined $100 or six weeks by Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Sentence of a year's hard labour was passed on a man named Cheung Luk who was charged before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning with returning from banishment. It was stated that defendant was sent away from the Colony in 1931.

"You don't get very big hauls nowadays" remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones when dealing with a gambling case this morning. The "banker" was fined $50 or one month's gaol, while four gamblers were fined $2 each for playing pai kau. $1.50 was collected and put in the Poor Box.

Arrested by Sergeant C. Pile in a stairway in Belchors Street, in possession of a pane of glass, a Chinese this morning admitted taking the glass but denied breaking and entering the flat. Inspector Hourihan stated there was no proof of how it was taken. Defendant had in his possession a knife and a hammer. A fine of $25 or one month's gaol was inflicted and defendant is to be sent back to the country.

HAPPY
PITCHERSST. LOUIS TWICE BLANKED OUT.CINCINNATI AND BOSTON ALSO

New York, July 2. There were some sensational pitching feats in the National Baseball League to-day.

St. Louis was twice blanked out in a double header against New York Giants, Hubbell doing the trick in the first game and Parmelee emulating his example in the second.

Boston blanked out Cincinnati in the first game of a double header and then suffered the same fate in the second.

The Yankees scored a useful win and Philadelphia nosed out St. Louis in the first of a double header, but were decisively beaten in the second match.

Scores as cabled by Reuter were:

110 M.P.H. TRAIN

U.S. RAILWAYS' BID TO CUT RUNNING COSTS

New York. In an effort to solve one of the chief causes of the American railways' high running costs, the Union Pacific Railroad has placed an order for an experimental stream-lined motor-driven train, capable of a maximum speed of 110 miles an hour and a sustained speed of 90 miles an hour on a level track.

The train of three coaches will first be operated on special runs between the larger cities to test its practicability. The cars will be all-metal, of aluminium alloy or stainless steel, with a tubular construction giving such strength that heavy undercarriages will be unnecessary.

The new three-car train will weigh not more than 80 tons, whereas the modern American passenger train, with locomotive, weighs in excess of 1,000 tons.

In design the new train utilizes developments in the automotive and aeronautical fields. It will have splinterless glass windows, a full-air-conditioning system, and a low centre of gravity, thus lessening the danger of accidents at high speeds. Its motive unit in the first car will be a 600-horsepower internal combustion engine, burning non-explosive distillate fuel, and connected with an electric generator and motors on the forward carriage.

Armed with a CHISEL GAOL FOR RECENT ARRIVAL

A Chinese, who recently arrived in the Colony, when arrested in Queen's Street in the early hours of yesterday morning, was found to have a chisel in his girdle, and another in his hand, with the point up sleeve of his jacket. He also had a small torch with two new batteries.

In the Central Police Court this morning, defendant was sentenced to one month's hard labour.

THE LAST EIGHTS AT WIMBLEDON

BRITAIN'S FOUR POSITIONS

"BUNNY" AUSTIN BIG HOPE

FINE SEEDING BY COMMITTEE

ONLY 4 PLAYERS GO ASTRAY

The last eight places in the men's and women's singles championships have been filled, and before the middle of this week the semi-finalists will be known.

So far as Britain is concerned she has only a fair representation. Two Davis Cup players occupy positions in the men's quarter finals and two girls, both selected for this year's Wightman Cup, figure in the women's event.

On H. W. Austin and G. P. Hughes rests Britain's hopes of winning back the Wimbledon singles crown. They are slender hopes when cognisance is taken of the powerful opposition which they have to meet, and there is little doubt that it will whittle down to everything depending on Austin as it did last year.

Austin's chances of reaching the final are largely dependent on the order of the draw. His most favourable encounters would be Menzel in the fifth round and Hughes, or Stoeffen if they survive, in the semi-final.

The odds are against Hughes progressing any further than the semi-final and it would therefore be to England's advantage if her two representatives met in this bracket, thus ensuring an English finalist.

ENGLISH GIRLS FAIL

The comparative failure of the English girls in the women's singles provides another disappointment. Their pre-Wimbledon form in both International matches and home and overseas championships gave rise to the belief that they would dominate The Championships, but the last eight finds only Miss Kathleen Stammers, by Miss Margaret Scriven and Miss Dorothy Round as survivors.

It is, of course to be borne in mind that in the fourth round, English players clashed in two matches, but there is also the defeat of Miss Kathleen Stammers, by Miss Margaret Scriven and Miss Dorothy Round as survivors.

As expected America's two leading exponents, Mrs. Wills Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs have survived to the fifth round, and the remaining four places are shared by Miss Mathieu (France), Miss Palot (Switzerland), Miss Valerio (Italy) and Miss Kathleen Stammers (Germany).

The committee's "seeding" has worked out with extraordinary accuracy. In the men's singles, five of the selected eight have made their way into the quarter-finals, the failures being Fred Perry, Clifford Suter and H.G.N. Lee.

In the women's singles, seven of the eight "seeded" competitors have survived, the only exception being Miss J. Szabo of Poland. This in itself is a sufficient tribute to the "seeding" committee.

THE LAST EIGHTS.

The last eight in the two singles events are:

MEN.

Ellsworth Vines (America)
J. Crawford (Australia)
H. W. Austin (Britain)
H. Cochet (France)
J. L. Stoeffen (America)
R. Menzel (Czechoslovakia)
Jiro Satoh (Japan)
G. P. Hughes (Britain)

WOMEN.

Mrs. H. Wills-Moody (America)
Miss Helen Jacobs (America)
Miss Mathieu (France)
Miss D. Round (Britain)
Fr. Krahwinkel (Germany)
Miss M. C. Scriven (Britain)
Miss Palot (Switzerland)
Miss Valerio (Italy)

LATEST RESULTS.

The latest Wimbledon results of matches played on Saturday are:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Fourth Round

J. Crawford (Australia) beat A. Stadman (New Zealand) 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.
H. Ellsworth Vines (U.S.A.) beat D. von Prehn (Germany) 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.
H. W. Austin (Britain) beat P. D. B. Spence (S. Africa) 6-2, 6-2, 6-4.
Hon. Cochet (France) beat Jones (U.S.A.) 6-4, 8-6, 6-0.

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Fourth Round

Mrs. H. Wills-Moody (America) beat Miss Katherine Stammers (Britain) 6-4, 6-0.

L. GAVIA DEFEATS LUM

FILIPINO'S BRILLIANT VICTORY

POLINTAN FAILS IN EVERY MATCH

SHANGHAI TENNIS PLAYERS WIN

DESCRIPTION OF EXHIBITIONS

Shanghai, June 26. Gordon Lum, local star, encountered his first setback of the season yesterday when he was defeated by the Filipino national title-holder, Leonardo Gavia, on the court of the Chinese Tennis Club, in the second singles exhibition match. The scores were 6-4, 3-6 and 6-3.

Proceeding to the Lum-Gavia tussle, Khoo Hoo-hye defeated Leodegario Polintan in two straight sets, 6-2 and 6-3. After a short interval, the doubles match between the visiting Filipino champions and the Chinese stars took place, and Gordon Lum partnered by Khoo Hoo-hye, vanquished L. Gavia and L. Polintan in three sets, the scores being 6-4, 3-6 and 6-1 in favour of the Chinese.

WINS EASILY.

Khoo experienced little difficulty in trouncing Polintan, who obtained only the first and third games of the opening set. Khoo was rather slow to get settled down and lost his service game after gaining 15 points. The Chinese took the second game after the set had been gone to duce. The Filipino obtained the third game to lead by two games to one, but Khoo was favoured with the decision of the next game to even up the count at two-all. Khoo then won a love game to lead by three to two. Having now sufficiently warmed up, Khoo took three more games to capture the first set at 6-2.

In the second set, Khoo established a lead of two games at the start. Polintan clinched the third game and then Khoo increased the margin to four to one. Polintan took the next game and Khoo won a love game to lead by five to two. Polintan shortened the margin down to five to three but Khoo easily won the next game and set at 6-3.

CLOSELY FOUGHT.

The match between Lum and Gavia was closely fought. Lum was erratic and time and again drove wild. Gavia was steady with his backhand drives by which he gained many points. Gavia's lobbing to the baseline was interesting to watch and when Lum rushed up in his attempts to deal his dandy amahs, Gavia tossed the ball over Lum's head.

GORDON LUM, China Davis Cup tennis player, former Shanghai champion and well known interpreter, who was recently married to Tientsin to Miss May Liang.

Lum, serving first, lost the opening game, but he came back strong to take three games in succession. Then in a fine rally, Gavia won four games in a row to clinch the lead from Lum at 5-3. Lum was favoured with the next game and Gavia won his service game and the first set at 6-4.

Alternate scoring marked the opening of the second set, each player winning his service game until the score reached two all. Then Lum forged ahead by taking the next two games to lead by 4-2. Gavia managed to win the seventh game but conceded two more games to Lum to enable the Chinese to win the set at 6-3 and thus the set score was brought to balance at one all.

In the final set, Gavia easily won the first game in his service after having yielded 15 points. With his ace service Lum drew level with a love game. Gavia went ahead to take three games in a row. Then players scored two games each, Gavia being credited with the set at 6-3 and the match.

DOUBLES COMPETITION.

Some classy play was witnessed in the doubles match. The first set, which went to Lum and Khoo, was finished in the quick time of seven minutes. For the first four games the serving side was favoured with the decision. Gavia, having lost his second service game, the Chinese pair forged into the lead at 4-2. Polintan won his service and Khoo did likewise. On Gavia's service, the Filipino pair shortened the margin down to 5 to 4 in favour of the Chinese. Then Lum and Khoo took the next game to win the set at 6-4.

In the second set, the score was brought to level twice at two all and three all. The Filipinos won the first two games and then the Chinese drew even. Polintan won his service game to lead by three to two but, the Chinese again levelled the count at three all. The Filipinos won the next three games and the set at 6-3.

In the final set, the Chinese showed superiority in combination and dis-

THEIR FINAL APPEARANCE

FILIPINOS LOSE LAST GAMES

Shanghai, June 26. The two visiting Filipino tennis champions again had an unsuccessful time yesterday in their farewell performance on the Shanghai Lawn Tennis Association's court at the Cercle Sportif Francaise, when they lost two matches and drew one against three local exponents, Gordon Lum, S. Machida, and Guy Cheng. Lum tied with Leonardo Gavia in the first singles at 3-6 and 6-0, and Machida scored at 6-4, 6-3 victory over Leodegario Polintan. In the doubles, Lum and Guy Cheng were victors by 6-4, 6-1.

In the singles Gavia lost the first game after two deuces. Lum played with great care and also managed to win the second game. In the next, the Filipino staided and improved, driving from one side to the other and forcing Lum to make mistakes, so that the score became 2-1. Serving the fourth game, the local player increased the lead to 3-1. Lum took two points in succession from Gavia's deliveries in the fifth game, then experienced bad luck when he drove two sizzling shots just on the wrong side of the tape. The game went to deuce and after a hard struggle Gavia brought the score to 3-2, then went on to annex the remaining games and the set.

With the start of the second set, Lum once more hit his stride and played errorlessly. Gavia was beaten at every turn and was rattled. He could not even win one game. Lum finished fresh and received loud applause for his splendid work. It was pity the third and deciding set could not be played, due to the limit of time.

The victory score by Machida, one of the two leading Japanese players in Shanghai, spelled the third successive downfall of Polintan. The winner held the lead from start to finish in the opening set. In the second, Polintan took the first game on service, and, after dropping two, won another to tie the count at two-all. Then the Japanese player drew away again to win safely at 6-3.

The doubles match was a little on the dull side, there being very few interesting rallies. The visiting team appeared to be lacking in spirit. Games went in favour of the servers for the first six. The Chinese pair broke Polintan's shots to lead the score and when Cheng won on his service the game was made safe. Lum served a love game in the tenth to conclude the set. In the next Lum and Cheng were a much better side and deserved the victory.

play hard drives to the openings and pretty cross-court shots. In the third game, there were no fewer than eight deuces and finally the Chinese won to lead by two to one. From then on the Chinese had an easy time to win four more games in a row and the set at 6-1.

S'HAH CRICKET LEAGUE LEADERS

STRAGGLERS ON TOP

DONALD LEACH'S BOWLING

SECOND PLACE FOR RECS:

MANSELL-SMITH IN FORM

MISS MARGARET SCRIVEN, the most brilliant of the younger school of English tennis players, also in the last eight at Wimbledon

Shanghai, June 25. The Stragglers retained their position at the top of the league yesterday when they defeated Shafores by six wickets on the Police ground, while the Recs went up to second place when they won over the Police by 58 runs, playing on their own pitch. The third match took place on the Cricket Club enclosure when two of the "Club" teams met, the Wanderers and Nomads playing out to a drawn conclusion. The drying sun over the past two days served to bring the pitches into good condition despite the steady rain earlier in the week.

Major Bonavia of the Shafores team claimed the best batting result of the day, carrying his bat for a well made 74 runs, while the remainder of his team could not hold out against the sound bowling of Leach and Jenkins. Stokes of the Stragglers put up a good exhibition to score 61 before he was sent back to the pavilion while O. Moor partnered him in his opening wicket stand and compiled 34.

In the Police-Recs game, "Jimmy" Quayle gave his younger colleagues a treat knocking up 33 in characteristic style, while W. H. Cochran and C. J. Smith of the Recs put up the best scores for their team, the former being undefeated with 28 and the latter

FINE BOWLING.

D. W. Leach and J. C. Jenkins claimed excellent averages in the bowling analysis, the former taking 5 of the Shafores wickets for 34 while the latter accounted for 4 for 28. "Sam" Isaacs sent five of the Recs batsmen home for 63 runs and Gavenlock took 3 for 51, while in reply H. B. Cochran took 3 for 10 and "Coco" Ollerden took 3 for 25, Pat Madar and "Torry" Wilson each claiming two wickets. In the third match Mansell-Smith took 5 for 45 and G. B. Elliott 3 for 40 against the Wanderers, while Anstie, Crickmer and Wales each claimed two wickets, and Tim Rawthorne bowled 14 overs for but 13 runs, taking a wicket as well.

On the Police ground, the Shafores were put in to bat first and though Major Bonavia opened confidently, his colleagues were not fated to remain at the wicket for long, a succession of wickets falling until the advent of Lt. Trimble. Here a good stand took place and the score mounted steadily 49 runs being added before Trimble was bowled by Jenkins. McTavish came in and helped to add 25 runs before he was sent back to the pavilion, while the closing batsmen held their end up well to allow Bonavia to score so that 142 went up before the side was all out.

The Stragglers opened very strongly with Stokes and Moor as the batsmen, runs coming steadily so that 78 went up before the latter was beaten by Williams. Gillespie failed to survive a "duck", and Elliott came in to hit out and the score continued to mount, the Stragglers thereby winning with six wickets.

ENDS IN DRAW.

The Wanderers elected to bat first as a result of being lucky with the spin of the coin and Barson opened with Mayhow against the bowling of Mansell-Smith and G. B. Elliott. Barson failed to survive an over and Thomson partnered Mayhow to send the score up rapidly. Thomson gave a chance at 13 but was not accepted and then Lingard sent one down that Mayhow cocked up to Graham. Thomson was well caught out by Elliott of Mansell-Smith. The arrival of More signalled a spreading out of the field and the new corner hit out effectively before he was well taken by Mansell-Smith and G. B. Elliott. Simpson played on to Mansell-Smith and B. L. Simpson was caught behind the wicket off a short delivery from Lingard. Keyworth's long innings, productive of but a few runs, came to an end on a low appeal and Rawthorne was seen in his usual mood hitting out strongly, eventually being caught in the slip by Simpson after having a "lift" off Mansell-Smith. Anstie was caught behind the stumps and Crickmer did not stay long, the innings coming to a close for 182.

Robson and P. V. Simpson opened for the Nomads and just when the pair appeared to be getting set, Robson was sent back to the pavilion given out by O. G. Simpson failed to break his "duck" and Sinclair joined P. V. Simpson to score slowly, the advent of Rawthorne in the attack seeing the former sent back being caught by Keyworth, Raynell and Mansell-Smith had a good stand, the former hitting out strongly and achieving the distinction of getting two also, before he was caught by Crickmer at point. The remaining batsmen scored slowly, and Mansell-Smith fell being caught by Quick, and Elliott and Graham were still undefeated when the falling light necessitated the drawing of stumps hereby bringing about a drawn conclusion, the Nomads having compiled 123 for 7 wickets against the 153 put up by the Wanderers.

RECS BAT FIRST.

The Recs batted first in their match against the Police and scored 102 before they were all out. In reply the Police were unable to score all

Athletic Records Fall

SOUTH AFRICA A.A. CHAMPIONSHIPS

Cape Town.—A number of athletic records were broken at the annual South African amateur athletic championships at Green Point Track when representatives from all the provinces took part. Most of South Africa's representatives at the Olympic Games retained their titles.

The record times put up were all the more remarkable in view of the fact that the races were run in very hot and sultry weather. It was so hot on the second day of the meeting that none of the competitors in the ten miles championship could finish. There was a similar situation at the 100 yds. race.

REFEREE ATTACKED BY A PRIEST

Belgrade.—Pandemonium broke loose when a young priest walked on to a football field at Tuzin (Bosnia) and in full view of 3,000 spectators, began to beat the referee.

The referee had given a decision against the young priest's favourite team. Spectators, already greatly excited about the match, rushed to the field. Some were for the referee, others for the priest.

FIERCE FIGHT.

A fierce fight ensued. One player was seriously wounded with a knife thrust, and numbers of the combatants were less seriously injured. It was several hours before the police could restore order.

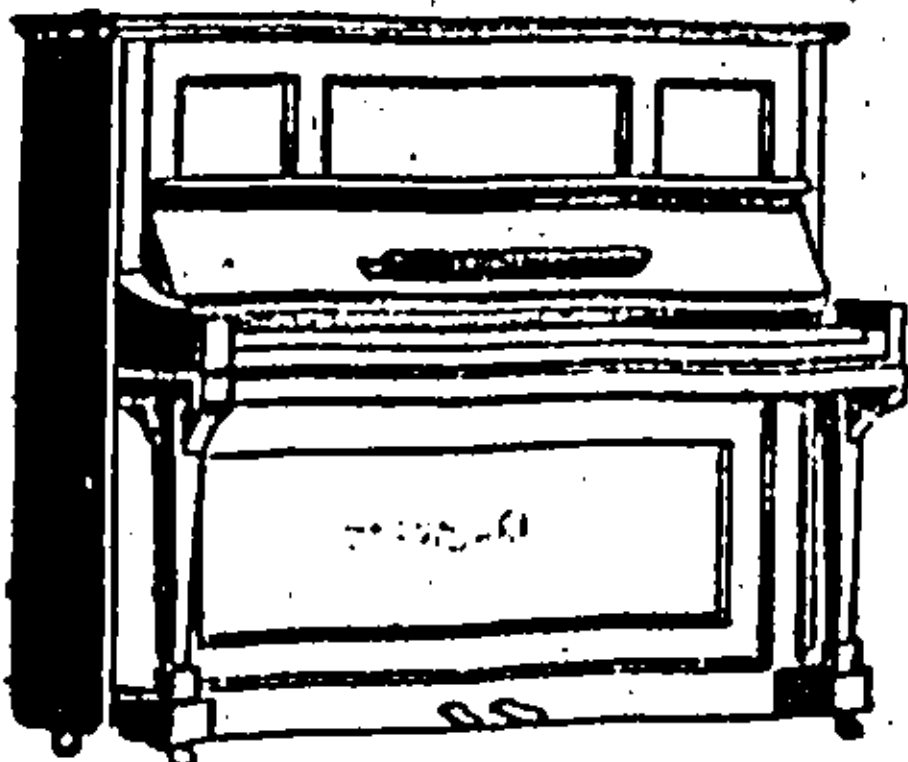

At the Olympic Games, broke the record for 100 yds. in 14.0-10 sec., which is 3/10 better than the previous record.

CAPT. YOSHI OKUNO

LINK WITH RICHARD TREVITHICK

GREAT-GRANDSON

Captain Yoshi Okuno, who will be well known to many Hongkong residents who have travelled to England on the N.Y.K. liner Hakusan Maru as its popular commander, is a great-grandson of Richard Trevithick, the noted Cornish inventor, whose centenary is celebrated this year. Christened Richard Trevithick after his great-grandfather and grand-father, Captain Okuno, many years ago, assumed Japanese nationality, and took the name of his mother, a Japanese lady.

This relationship was discovered by Mr. Alfred Hicks, editor of the Hongkong Telegraph, who recently left Hongkong on home leave aboard the s.s. Hakusan Maru, accompanied by his wife. Mr. Hicks, whilst having a chat with Captain Okuno, in the latter's cabin, noticed a photograph of a statue of Richard Trevithick, the inventor, occupying a prominent place, and when he inquired into Captain Okuno's interest in the subject of the photograph, the latter replied: "I am Richard Trevithick's great-grandson."

In the course of further conversation, Captain Okuno stated that his father, Francis Henry Trevithick, a grandson of the inventor, went out to Japan in 1876 as chief superintendent of the locomotive department of the Japanese Government railways, and as adviser in connexion with the construction of Japan's first railway line, from Tokyo to Yokohama. "As his grandfather could claim to have been the pioneer of the locomotive, so could my father claim to have been the pioneer of railways in Japan," remarked Captain Okuno.

Took to the Sea.

Capt. Okuno's father remained in Japan until 1897, and during his lengthy stay there he married a Japanese lady. There were four children by the marriage, Capt. Okuno being the eldest. The children remained in Japan for many years, with their mother, after their father returned to England. After the mother's death, one of the four children, a girl, died; Captain Okuno remained in Japan for a time, and a brother and sister came to England, where they are still living, in Birmingham. It is interesting to note that both these children recently attended the Trevithick centenary service in Westminster Abbey. In 1901, Captain Okuno came to England from Japan, having

Nanking, July 1. After considering the matter for nine months, the board of the Chinese-British Boxer Indemnity Fund has approved the loan of $4,300,000 for the completion of the Canton-Hankow Railway. Of this sum, $1,200,000 will be secured by the flotation of bonds.

The delay is due to the Board's carelessness regarding security, which will consist of a surcharge on passengers and freight on all national railway revenues on the Peking-Hankow Railway, the Nan-king-Pukow train ferry, and the section of the Canton-Hankow Railway between Canton and the Kwangtung border.—Reuter.

FOREIGN FIRMS HIT.

GOODS STILL HELD UP AT POGRANITCHNAYA

London, July 1. Foreign firms who are suffering great losses as a result of the holding up of their freights at Pogranitchnaya, owing to the suspension of through traffic between the Ussuri and North Manchurian Railways, are vigorously protesting, according to reports from Khabarovsk.

The responsibility for the loss, according to the Manchurian authorities, lies with the Soviet, whom they accuse of refusing to organize trans-shipment for import and export freights at the frontier station.—Reuter.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha, and obtained command in 1916. He has remained in this company ever since. Captain Okuno's father died in 1931, and it was a fortunate circumstance that the son was in England at the time and was able to be present at the funeral.

Proud of the Link

Capt. Okuno, who is an extremely popular commander on the N.Y.K. Line, and who speaks English, French, and Japanese fluently, still maintains regular contact with his brother and sister, and always stays with them at Birmingham when his ship touches at London. Twice married, on each occasion to a Japanese lady, he has two sons, one by each wife. He is very proud of his link with the inventor of the locomotive, and amongst the most treasured of his possessions is a model of a hammer, made in gold and silver, with a suitable inscription, which was presented to his father by the Japanese Government on the 50th anniversary of the introduction of railway into Japan.

STUDENT AGITATION CEASES

(Our Own Correspondent).

Fortunately there has been no apparent sequel to the protest by students and others against the Armistice in the north. It would seem that wiser counsels had prevailed; and the students have gone on quietly with their lawful avocations, and have been busy during the last couple of weeks in preparing to persuade their teachers that they know a great deal more than they really—in other words swotting up for examinations.

Even the opposition to the Government's "Uniform Examination" for boys and girls finishing their school courses has come to a sudden and satisfactory conclusion, thanks mainly to the firmness of the Government authorities, who made it clear that any private school whose pupils refused to take the Exam would be forthwith deprived of its registration and all privileges connected therewith.

This enabled the heads of schools, some of whom had almost openly sympathized with their pupils in opposing the Government, to threaten strong action against any who jeopardized the existence of their schools, and the result has been that all the pupils have taken the Exam. This refers to Foochow and North Fuku.

In South Fuku and Amoy, according to all accounts, things have been much more serious, and violence has been shown, by the students. The Educational Commissioner has despatched a representative to see what can be done about it. But meantime the Foochow students are hoping that, as they were so good as to go in for the Exam in the end, the examiners will be specially lenient, and allow them all to pass.

The weather of late has been what we usually have in June, and the less said about it the better. We look forward to the autumn with its dry, bracing air, warm days and cool nights; but the time is not yet.

adopted a seagoing career. From 1901 to 1904, he served his time in sailing ships, and then successively joined the Bucknall Line and the Atlantic Transport Line as officer. Later, he took Japanese nationality and his mother's name and became an officer in the leading Japanese steamship company,

BURIED GOLD CLUES

WRECK OF LUTINE LOCATED

Amsterdam. Valuable clues to the position of the century old buried gold of the historic English frigate Lutine, which sank off the Isle of Texschelling in 1799, have been secured.

The salvage-vessel Texel is reported to have found the exact position of the wreck and of the bulk of the iron which was once the ship's ammunition.

The location of the iron is considered to be of great importance, as it is generally believed that the treasure-room, in which the gold and silver bars are hidden, is beneath it. A haul out of the wreck has already been brought to the surface.

The Lutine, whose bell is known throughout the world as the famous "Lutine Bell" of Lloyd's, sank when carrying gold bars and gold coins of a total value of one and a quarter million pounds sterling at present from the Bank of England to save Hamburg bankers at a moment of dire distress.

Many attempts to save the valuable cargo have since been made, but up to the present only about £100,000 worth of gold has been brought up.—Reuter.

Death of Rev. Henry Howard, D.D.

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, July 1.

The Rev. Henry Howard, D.D., Litt. D., prominent Presbyterian minister, passed away to-day at the age of 74.

The Rev. Howard was pastor of Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church from 1920 to the time of his death. Born in Melbourne he was first associated with the Adelaide Central Methodist Mission of which he was superintendent from 1905 to 1921. He was also temporarily in charge of the Wesleyan Church, Prince Arthur Road, Hampstead, London, before taking up his last living in New York.

He was the author of a number of books of religious themes, his last publication being "The Defeat of Fear" in 1931.

NEW TYPE OF WOMAN POLITICIAN

WANTS JOB IN HER HUSBAND'S NAME

Washington, D.C.

A new type of woman politician has come upon the American scene. She wants her political job in her husband's name so that she'll be free to follow her own career.

Half a dozen women, outstanding in their States, are asking that public appointments which they feel they have earned by loyal service to the "victorious Democratic party," be handed to their husbands.

These several husbands have been, for the most part, successful business men, but now that business isn't what it used to be, their wives "recommend" them for public office.—Reuter.

NAZIS CONDEMN JAZZ

CLEANER BERLIN CAMPAIGN

CLOSING OF CABARETS

Berlin. Berlin to-day, it is claimed, is one of the most respectable cities in the world.

Not long ago, the night life of the German capital was notorious for its variety and its freedom from legal or moral shackles.

The remarkable change in atmosphere is mainly due to the "morality campaign" inaugurated by the first Prussian commissarial government last year and now being pushed through to a vigorous finish by Admiral von Lovetsov, the Nazi police president.

"Cleaner Berlin" has become one of the most fervid slogans of Hitler's followers.

In the feverish days before this "push for purity" started there was no kind of pleasure, it used to be said, which was not catered for in Berlin; or, at any rate, that was the general impression.

Hair-raising stories were whispered of the orgies alleged to be staged by rich and blasé youth in search of new sensations. And, whatever exaggerations there may have been, many Germans were becoming uneasy owing to the unsavoury reputation being accorded rightly or wrongly, to their capital.

CABARETS CLOSED.

Admiral von Lovetsov, however, has shown himself determined to obliterate any such impression.

Twenty so-called "cabarets" have been closed in the last few weeks. Local police have been given extraordinary powers to shut down any cafe or night resort which seems to them likely to offend against decency.

Another part of the "cleaner Berlin" campaign is the drive against any impropriety in print—whether in books, pictures or advertisements.

A special department has been set up at police headquarters to deal with this and to be on the alert against any danger to public morals in print or photograph.

Consultation with artistic experts has been arranged in cases where an "artistic issue" is raised. There has also been a certain amount of unofficial intervention.

The Nazis have never really approved of night clubs, however innocent their purpose.

Especially, they condemn negro Jazz. Already it has been forbidden over the wireless.

"PURITY" BAN.

Eccentric modernist decoration, too, comes under the "purity" ban of zealous Nazis. Several night clubs which "offended" in this respect have now had coats of paint put over their once-riotous walls.

Altogether, Berlin night clubs which still carry on do so in a subdued, rather mournful fashion, as if the people in them were afraid of a raid at any moment.

Many have the Nazi Swastika banners hung prominently on the walls, or placards announcing their Nationalist character. But, even with these "safeguards," there is an air of insecurity about these resorts of "joy"—Reuter.

LANCASHIRE GIRL'S STRANGE REQUEST

Sydney.

Because he is the "best known man about town," a Lancashire lass has asked the Lord Mayor of Sydney to find her a "nice Australian husband."

The Lord Mayor has experienced many new responsibilities since taking office, but being called upon to act as a match-maker is something he had not bargained for.

The girl identifies herself as Miss Bowden, of the Railway Bookstall, Wigan, Lancashire.

She says she is dying to get to Australia, and would like to marry a "nice Australian." "My age is 25 and I am a single girl," she said.

"I never expected this," said the Lord Mayor, "but we will have to see what we can do."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

While we do not open with one no trump unless we hold a very strong hand in the constructive one over one system of contract bidding, this does not mean that we avoid the playing of a contract at no trump.

You should always be on the alert to play a hand at no trump, but try to place the declaration in the proper hand. Before launching into a no trump contract, however, make sure that the hand has no holes, especially if you have a good playable major suit.

I was rather surprised in the following hand to see a number of players play this hand at hearts when an easy game could be made at no trump. One pair, however, was successful in making four

♠K-10-9-5-2	♥10-2	♦A-10-9-3	♣7-6
♠8-6-3	♥7	♦K-7	♣6-5
♠10-9	♥4-3-2	♦A-Q-7	♣4-3
♠A-Q-9-6	♥J-8-5	♦K-8	♣K-J-8
♠J-4	♥A-K-Q-9-6	♦J-4-2	♣A-Q-5

The Bidding.

hearts for a top score on the board. That, however, does not make it the correct declaration—it required a very fine coup play to make the four odd at hearts.

The correct bidding on the hand is South one heart, North one spade, South two hearts, North three diamonds, and South three no trump.

West will open a club. It will be necessary to lay off one club and the contract is in.

To make four odd at hearts, even with a club opening, the declarer must at once proceed to ruff a club and then lead the ten of hearts, which East will cover with the jack and the declarer will win with the queen.

The natural play is for the declarer to play down the ace of hearts, West will discard a club and dummy a spade. This makes it look as though the declarer must lose one heart trick. However, the jack of diamonds can next be led, East will win with the queen and his best is to return the eight of diamonds, which will be won in dummy with the nine.

Declarer will now return a small spade from dummy, which East wins with the queen. East will cash his ace of spades and then lead a small spade on which the declarer must discard his deuce of diamonds, winning the spade trick in dummy.

He can then lead the ace of diamonds, East will be forced to trump, declarer will over-trump and can now pick up the two remaining trump.

While this is a nicely played hand, the safer contract is three no trump.

The final scenes of the picture—the examination of suspects and the recreation of the crime—have been remarkably well portrayed by both director and cast. The combination of the excitement of football with the excitement of a murder mystery has resulted in an unusually thrilling finale.

The cast which is of uniform excellence includes Phillips Holmes as Buck John Mack Brown as Clark, Dorothy Jordan as Clark's sister, Charlie Ruggles as the newspaper reporter, David Landau as the detective, J. Farrell MacDonald as the State football coach, Lew Cody as the gambler, Kenneth Thomson as the team doctor, and Big Boy Williams, George Rosener, Walter Hiers, Paul Page, Reed Howes, and John Davis Hensley in supporting roles.

"Marry Me" The countless thousands of admirers of Renate Muller's art since her brilliant performance in "Sunshine Susie," will be delighted to learn that she will again be seen in "Marry Me," described as a lively and lovely successor to "Sunshine." She is aided and abetted in this picture by a superb cast, which includes such names as Harry Green, George Robey, Billy Caryl, Ian Hunter, Maurice Evans, Charles Hawtrey, Viola Egel, and Sunday Wilshin. They all keep the ball of fun rolling merrily.

The story, briefly, tells of the love Ann Linden (Renate Muller) pretty recordist in the Olympic Gramophone factory for Robert Hart (Ian Hunter) a fellow employee, one of three brothers who share a happy-go-lucky flat. Anne's affections are not reciprocated with the warmth she aspires to, for the eyes and heart of Robert are set upon a rich marriage. She thereupon takes the advice of her manager (Athole Stewart) and adopts "football tactics" in her attempt to secure her Robert. As part of these tactics she enters the Hart's home as housekeeper, only to disappear just when the delight of her presence are making themselves manifest. As part of her plan, a matrimonial bureau (run by Harry Green) brings her into touch with a Hungarian farmer, the middle-aged Aloysius (George Robey), and, out of sheer perverseness, the girl threatens to marry him. In the third act, Ann is aided by Robert's brothers. The romance ends in the only possible way. Ann "bangs into goal" and secures her Robert, whilst Aloysius a bride of more mature charms, whose desire for a rural life is unquestionable.

With an excellent cast, a story that does not flag for an instant, and several musical numbers, that are certain to be enjoyed and remembered, "Marry Me" has every possible element that makes for success.

6-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED

KNOCKED DOWN BY MOTOR CAR

Fatal injuries from which he died while being conveyed to Hospital, were suffered by Hui Ping-tin, aged 6, as a result of being struck down by a car at Shaokwan last night.

At the time the car was overtaking another vehicle in Main Street, and it failed to clear the lad who had appeared unexpectedly from Taining Street. The position appears to have been further complicated by the presence also of a tram.

The victim was accompanied by his little brother and their mother.

OPIUM STRAPPED ROUND LEGS

CHINESE SENTENCED THIS MORNING

Arrested on the Praya in possession of a quantity of illicit opium, found strapped round his legs, a Chinese was fined $900 or five months by Mr. Schofield this morning.

On a charge of keeping an opium divan at a house in Burrows Street, a youth, aged 13 years, was remanded for 48 hours, his Worship directing him to be sent to the S.C.A. for enquiries.

RUSSIAN TRADER EXPELLED

MAN WITHOUT ANY PASSPORT

An expulsion order was this morning made by Mr. Wynne-Jones against Singatulla Minnigallmoif, a young Russian trader, charged with entering the Colony without a valid passport. Defendant at a previous hearing claimed he had a passport which was issued in Shanghai by the Chinese Public Safety Bureau, but it had been stolen by Chinese.

The Hongkong Police communicated with the Shanghai authorities who replied that two passports were issued in defendant's name in 1930, one for Canton, and the other for Shantung, Hunan and Hupeh. Defendant now had no passport of any description.

Det-Sergt. Mottram stated defendant wished to go to Swatow, and the Police thought it would be all right for him to land there.

ANOTHER CASE.

The remand case in which Pierre Henri Agostini, 27, mercantile assistant, who is charged with entering Hongkong without a valid passport, was again before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning. Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared for the defence and stated that as he had only been instructed at 9.15 a.m. to-day, he would ask for a short adjournment. The case was remanded until to-morrow. Mr. W. P. Thompson A.D.C.I., appeared for the prosecution.

BOMBING PLANE CRASH

Langley Field, Va., June 26.

Four army fliers were killed to-day when their big bombing plane crashed into the James river from an undetermined cause. Their bodies were found in the wreckage of the sunken craft and will be removed to-morrow.

Those who met death were Lieuts. H. W. Mackelcan and L. Horvath, and Privates J. J. Sayre and W. Olive.

CALIFORNIA WET

ORIENTAL THEATRE

ONLY 2 DAYS MORE TO-DAY TO-MORROW
DIZZIER and FUNNIER THAN EVER BEFORE!

Year's best comedy show with world's greatest comedians.

Two crazy doughboys go wild in Paris. They impersonate officers... pose as heroes... elope with their Colonel's daughter... steal his car... pull down the wrath of the whole army on their necks.
